Great Simian Chase Stops City Traffic

UNCOOPERATIVE—Elusive spider monkey, outwitted by San Rafael policeman (with plenty of volunteer assistance) would only make faces at photographer today as he was held at Marin Pet Hospital to await being claimed by owner. (Independent-Journal photo)

A spider monkey did a high wire act at Third Street and Grand Avenue yesterday to the delight of numerous spectators and the consternation of a San Rafael police officer.

The monkey, with a four-inch leash attached to his red collar, was first spotted skipping and jumping, laughing and scratching his way down the telephone and power lines on Third Street.

Police Officer John A. Loane, summoned by numerous telephone calls at 5 p.m., saw the light tan monkey "running back and forth on the lines and in and out of trees."

How to trap the squealing little monkey?

Several citizens and Loane first tried to contain the monkey in an area so they could get hold of him. This didn't work.

A man tossed peanuts into the air. The monkey wasn't interested.

The San Rafael Fire Department sent an engine with a ladder, but firemen begged off when they saw the ladder would have to be placed against power lines.

There was no alternative. Loane had to go it alone.

Before tackling the job, he called for help from fellow police officers as "everyone had to stop and see the action, causing traffic tieups."

Loane climbed several utility poles to try and catch the monkey. But each time it backed off.

Finally a tree-trimming pole was brought from Goodman Builders Emporium at 369 Third Street.

The monkey was shaken from the power lines, landing unhurt in a coat held below as a "fire net." He was taken to the Marin Pet Hospital at Third Street and Grand Avenue where today he awaited his owner—whoever that is.

BUT WHERE OH, WHERE WILL HE GO?

A stray black Labrador retriever pawed on the door of the Sausalito School District board room at 9 p.m. yesterday during the trustees' meeting.

He was admitted and sat attentively in the front row. But when the meeting ended at 11 p.m., he jumped in the car with Supt. Marcus F. Davis and went home to San Francisco with him.

"I fed him graham crackers last night," said Davis, "and raided the ice box for him this morning." But, Davis declared, "Big Sam" —now under Davis's desk— must go because you can't bring a dog to school."

Fairfax Father Of Five Dies As Car, Engine Hit

Wife Is Injured In Berkeley Accident

A 41-year-old Fairfax man, father of five, was killed instantly when a car in which he was passenger was struck broadside by a railroad switch engine in Berkeley last night.

Robert R. Ahola of 303 Cascade Drive, a Marin resident for 12 years, died of a crushed chest. His wife, Mary R. Ahola, 39, who was driving, escaped with head injuries and bruises. She was treated at Herrick Memorial Hospital in Berkeley and sent home early today.

Ahola, a fireman for 12 years on the Berkeley Fire Department, helped organize the Fireman's Helmet Club in Berkeley. He and his wife were returning to their home after a fashion show at the club.

Berkeley police said Mrs. Ahola was lost and was trying to find her way to a main road when the accident happened at 10:43 p.m. at Page and Third streets, where the main Southern Pacific rail line crosses Page Street.

The Aholas' 1960 car was headed east on Page Street. The northbound switch engine, operated by Freeman Borchert, 51, of San Pablo, hit the car on the passenger side, dragging it 200 feet, police said.

WENT 300 FEET

The engine stopped after 300 feet, according to Officer Robert B. Johnston, who investigated the fatality.

Mrs. Ahola told police she was going about 10 miles an hour and did not see the train until it hit her car. There is no automatic signal at the crossing, only a warning sign.

Borchert told police he saw the car slow as it approached the crossing and thought it was going to stop. When it pulled ahead onto the tracks, it was too late for him to do anything about it.

The Alameda County coroner's office said Ahola died instantly.

MARRIED 20 YEARS

Ahola was a native of Wakefield, Mich. He served in the Merchant Marine during World War II and had worked as a carpenter in the East Bay before joining the Berkeley Fire Department.

He and his wife had been married 20 years.

He leaves also a daughter, Ellen, 19; four sons, Robert, 16, Michael and James, 12-year-old twins, and Eric, 11; his mother, Saima Ahola of Berkeley; a brother, William Ahola of Richmond, and four sisters, Mrs. Ray Hulmer of Napa, Mrs. Lois Dallal of San Carlos, Mrs. William Longaker of El Cerrito, and Mrs. Ted Jalo of San Rafael.

Algeria Says Moroccans Forced Back

ALGIERS (AP) — Algiers Radio claimed today that Algerian forces have recaptured two desert outposts taken by Moroccan troops yesterday.

The Algerians said Moroccan troops supported by tanks, planes and heavy artillery swept up to 60 miles over the border yesterday in the area of Hassi-Beida and Tinjoub, the outposts.

NEVER ADMITTED

The Algerian government never officially admitted that the two places fell to the Moroccan invaders. But today, the radio announcer said in a triumphant voice:

"Our forces have cleared the invaders from Hassi-Beida and Tinjoub."

The broadcast said the Moroccan forces were bringing in heavy reinforcements. It alleged that some of the Moroccan troops were airlifted to the fighting area in planes piloted by American airmen, members of a U.S. military training detachment with the Royal Moroccan Air Force.

AID FROM U.S.?

The declaration that American airmen were involved was denied in Rabat, Morocco, by Col. Thomas McClung of Leivasy W.Va., chief of the U.S. Military Assistance group in Morocco. McClung said: "We haven't moved anybody."

Three bases of the U.S. Strategic Air Command are in western Morocco at Benguerrir, Nouasseur and Sidi Slimane—far removed from the combat zone.

All three are to be turned back to Morocco by the end of 1963. U.S. combat planes have already been transferred elsewhere.

COUNTERATTACK

Informed sources in Rabat, Morocco, said the Algerians counterattacked last night with strong reinforcements, supported by observation planes. These sources said fighting continued this afternoon around the two outposts and in a rather large surrounding area.

The government-dominated press and radio of Algeria seemed to be making an effort to whip up popular enthusiasm for the undeclared war.

President Ahmed Ben Bella announced he planned to address a mass rally tonight on the forum, a square in front of the government building.

LESTER HINGSBERGEN

Ex-Vehicles Aide Denies Fraud Charges

Lester H. Hingsbergen of San Rafael, former chief special investigator for the State Department of Motor Vehicles, denied today new charges against him of fraudulent misconduct.

In a complaint filed yesterday with the State Personnel Board in Sacramento, Hingsbergen is charged with accepting money from San Francisco automobile dealers for special help in dealings with the state.

"I deny everything," Hingsbergen told the Independent-Journal. "The whole business is a stinking mess, and we'll expose it all at my hearing."

Hingsbergen, who lives at 32 Dellwood Court, was fired last June after he refused to talk at a Los Angeles hearing on charges of bribery against a fellow investigator, Morris Genser.

A personnel board hearing on a charge of insubordination against Hingsbergen is set for Oct. 28 in San Francisco.

Genser, investigator for the Southern California area, was fired and indicated by the Los Angeles County Grand Jury on charges of accepting money for favors to auto dealers. A. J. Veglia, registrar of vehicles, was also dismissed for allegedly protecting Genser.

The new complaint against Hingsbergen, who served the

New Storm Splashes Into Marin

A new storm splashed into Marin County this morning bringing steady showers with over half an inch of rainfall by noon.

Woodacre was the soggiest with .66 of an inch by noon. San Rafael had .3.

The storm did not have the strong wind and the hard down-pours that hit the county last Thursday, and the Weather Bureau said it should end by tonight. Skies will be clear tomorrow, the forecast said.

The storm reportedly broke off from a larger disturbance at sea. Storm warnings were flying along the Marin coast.

Other noon totals were Point Reyes Station, .55; Chevy Chase in Larkspur, .4; San Anselmo, .38; Mill Valley, .32, and Novato, .3.

San Rafael's seasonal total now stands at 2.02. Last year at this time it was 10.15.

Transit District To Get New Try

Marin County will try again for a rapid transit district, the county board of supervisors decided today.

The board asked Mrs. Margaret Azevedo of the Marin Council for Civic Affairs and County Counsel E. Warren McGuire to cooperate in drafting a proposed bill for introduction to the State Legislature at its next session.

A bill by Assemblyman William T. Bagley (R-Marin-Sonoma) empowering Marin County to set up its down rapid transit district was passed by the legislature this year but pocket vetoed by Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

Bay Bridge One-Way Decks Traffic Smooth

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Traffic flowed smoothly on the Bay Bridge's two one-way decks today.

"Everything went fine, and there was only one stall from the toll plaza on the Oakland side to San Francisco," said R. P. Murphy, state bridge traffic engineer.

Cosmonauts To Visit At United Nations

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) —The Soviet Union's first man and woman cosmonauts will visit the United Nations tomorrow, it was announced today.

The space travelers, Yuri Gagarin and Valentina Tereshkova, were invited here by Secretary General Thant. The Russians will arrive tonight from Mexico City where they took part in a Soviet goodwill visit.

Voting Is Light On Hub Schools

Voting on the San Anselmo School District's triple-headed finance measure was held down by rain today as less than 6 per cent had gone to the polls by noon.

The five polling places will stay open until 7 p.m.

"We're disappointed," Supt. Stephen Parodi said. He wanted a large, representative vote on the three measures.

Voters were to decide a $700,000 bond issue and a $500,000 state loan for construction and a boost from $1.80 to $2.45 per $100 assessed valuation in the maximum general fund tax.

There are 6,559 registered voters in the district. By noon only 360 had voted, Parodi reported.

Tomales High Vote Set Jan. 14

Voters in the Tomales High School District will be given a chance next Jan. 14 to choose among a bond issue, a tax increase or abandonment of condemned high school buildings, the board of trustees voted last night.

The board called for a bond issue of $175,000 to finance repairs to the main building up to meet state "earthquake proofing" requirements and to replace the shop building.

The ballot will also carry a tax increase proposal to finance the repairs and replacement on a pay-as-you-go basis, and as a third choice, abandonment of the buildings. Amount and duration of the tax rate increase is yet to be worked out.

If voters decreed abandonment, the district might have to put classes in temporary buildings, suggested County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney, who met with the board.

The board instructed Supt. Anthony J. Matulich to arrange a joint meeting with trustees and administrators of the four elementary school districts in the Marin County portion of Tomales High School District to discuss school sites proposed in the West Marin Master Plan. This was done at the request of the county planning staff.

Bridge Directors Opposed On Deck

Two Marin directors on the Golden Gate Bridge board agreed before the Marin County Board of Supervisors today that they "respect each others' views," then proceeded to lock horns on the question of a second deck on the bridge.

"I don't think we should close the door on a second deck," declared director Thomas D. Hardcastle of Novato. He said it might cost $25 million as compared with $500 million dollars for a second crossing.

Director Leland S. Murphy of Inverness took the opposite view. "I'm not in favor of a second deck. I'm not in favor of another parallel bridge . . . I think we should promote a second crossing to San Francisco," he said.

Supervisor Peter Behr advanced the idea of using ferries and hydrofoils to carry commuters across the bay. He said the function of the bridge board should include studies of moving people, not only by cars and buses but over water.

"Eight ferries might cost four million dollars. This would take away the peak load problem on the bridge. It could be a solution as opposed to half billion dollars for a new bridge," said Behr.

A new crossing would take at least 10 years to realize, and probably much longer, Behr contended. "Ferries, if proved feasible, could be instituted in our lifetime."

The people of Marin, said Supervisor Byron W. Leydecker, are concerned because bridge district reserves built up from tolls they have paid are not being used to benefit them.

Supervisor William A. Gnoss, calling for a second crossing, declared: "You've got 22 million dollars in reserve and are bringing in about one million dollars each year. The only solution is a second bridge."

Hardcastle and Murphy appeared before the supervisors to report on the bridge board's activities. In the past, bridge directors have almost never appeared before the supervisors.

Udall Will Take Tito On Tour Of Yosemite

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK (AP) — Marshal Tito, the 71-year-old Communist leader of Yugoslavia, will be given a tour of Yosemite National Park Friday by the highest paid guide in the nation.

The State Department in San Francisco said today the guide will be U.S. Secretary of Interior Stewart Udall, who will accompany the Yugoslavian president around the park and explain the glories of nature's wonders to him.

Mill Valley Session Is Called Off

There will be no meeting tomorrow night of the Mill Valley committee which was formed to protest the firing of City Mgr. A. E. Almcrants.

"We feel there is no need for a meeting at this time," committee spokesman Robert R. Laughead said today. "We feel a satisfactory solution will be arrived at the next city council meeting, Oct. 21."

The city council plans to discuss the proposed firing next Monday night. Three councilmen having announced they plan to fire the city manager on that date.

Almcrants resigned Sept. 27, withdrew his resignation Sept. 30 following pleas to do so from supporters. The intention to fire was announced subsequently.

The citizens committee was formed Oct. 4. A five-man group from the committee met last Friday with Mayor Joseph E. Sheeks, following which Laughead reported "considerable progress was reached."

Mar West Road Shut By County

Mar West Road in Tiburon, at the intersection of Tiburon Boulevard, will be closed immediately because of slides and the danger of a hill collapse, the Marin County Board of Supervisors decided today.

The unanimous action came on a request by the Tiburon Peninsula Club and other community groups, including Reed School District officials. Mrs. Thomas Stanton, representing the peninsula club, appeared before the supervisors to press for action.

Public Works Director Donald R. Frost estimated it would cost $75,000 to $100,000 to repair the slide at Red Hill. Building an alternate route might come to $20,000 to $25,000, but this is only a "very rough guess," Frost added.

Supervisors asked Frost to get cost estimates, confer with owners of land, and return with information next Tuesday.

An alternate route bypassing the slide area would require crossing Northwestern Pacific Railroad tracks.

But in the meantime, with rain pouring down outside, the supervisors decided they should close Mar West immediately.

"I'll do so today," promised Frost.

Closing the slide area does not close Mar West completely. It has another outlet to Tiburon Boulevard, although this means traveling in a round-about way.

Inverness Arson Try Is Probed

Sheriff's deputies and officials of the Marin County Fire Department today were checking evidence of a possible attempt to burn down the Inverness Park Grocery on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Inverness Park.

Deputy William S. Christensen reported a wad of paper and piece of carpet were found smoldering Sunday night in a redwood foundation vent under a cabin attached to the rear of the store, operated by Wilma Maria Van Peer.

Mrs. Van Peer was away from the house at the time, but four children and a baby sitter, Fred Horr Jr., 13, were there. Young Horr smelled smoke and called for help. The fire only scorched the redwood vent, but County Fire Chief Louis J. Bloom said a major fire could have started if the vent had been made of pine or fir.

King Threatens Demonstrations

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. threatened yesterday to call thousands of Negroes into the streets to back up demands for more desegregation.

The integration leader made the promise at a mass rally last night after Birmingham Mayor Albert Boutwell rejected his demands that the city hire 25 Negro policemen by next Monday.

King promised that the demonstrations would be larger than the huge campaign he led in Birmingham last spring which resulted in more than 2,500 arrests.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Navy Hero, Envoy Alan Kirk Dies

NEW YORK (AP)—Adm. Alan G. Kirk, 74, a naval hero who spent 40 years in military service and then went on to high diplomatic assignments, died today in Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center.

Kirk

Kirk entered the hospital Sept. 1 for treatment of a heart ailment.

He resigned last April as ambassador to Nationalist China because of ill health.

Kirk retired from the Navy in 1946 to accept appointment as ambassador to Belgium and minister to Luxembourg.

He later served three years as ambassador to Russia.

When Allied soldiers stormed into Sicily in 1943, Kirk led a task force that landed a division in less than half the scheduled time and without the loss of a single ship.

In the invasion of France on June 6, 1944, Kirk commanded the huge U.S. Naval task force that landed Allied troops and supported them by bombarding enemy installations on the Normandy beaches.

Two Meningitis Deaths Reported

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Two deaths from meningitis, one at Fort Ord and the other near Ukiah, were reported yesterday.

Army medical authorities at Fort Ord, said Pvt. Joseph P. Herrold, 21, of Blythe, died of meningitis and pneumonia complications.

Mrs. Vivian Martha Stevens, 50, of Talmadge near Ukiah died yesterday.

Mendocino County Health Director Dr. C. R. Kroeger said Mrs. Stevens died within an hour after being admitted to county hospital with "an epidemic form of meningitis."

Maj. Gen. James V. Edmundson found the bodies of his parents, James A. Edmundson, 81, and Nora Edmundson, 71, side by side on cots in their garage.

Mrs. Edmundson had been suffering from terminal cancer.

Quints' Birthday Party

ABERDEEN, S.D. (AP)—It was wet and gray here yesterday but the people turned out in droves to say "Happy Birthday" to the Fischer quintuplets.

An estimated 20,000 to 25,000 lined Aberdeen's main street for a mile-long, hour and a half parade honoring Andrew Fischer, his wife, Mary Ann, and their newborn — four girls and a boy.

Six blocks from the noise and excitement of the biggest celebration ever staged in this farming community, the month-old quints squirmed and kicked in their Isolettes at St. Luke's Hospital.

Pope Sees Jews

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI received a group of Jews in private audience and told them: "We have a common Bible and a common God."

A leader of the Jewish delegation, Rabbi Herbert A. Friedman of New York City, replied that, "Men of good will the world over are seeking today to find the roots of their brotherhood."

Singer In Merger

NEW YORK — Singer Co. took its first step into the business machine field yesterday when stockholders of both corporations approved Singer's acquisition by merger of Friden Inc.

Singer will issue four-sevenths of a share of its stock—2,233-715 shares in all — for each share of Friden. The exchange, based on Singer's closing price yesterday of $81.37 per share, would exceed 181 million dollars.

Friden produces adding machines, calculators, data processing systems, mailroom equipment, electric space heaters and graphic arts equipment.

AEC Backs Nuclear Vessels

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy believes U.S. atomic know-how is moving ahead so rapidly that before long it will be dollar-foolish to build surface warships with fuel oil engines rather than nuclear power plants.

It is supported by the Atomic Energy Commission, which in effect touched off the current dispute between the Defense Department and the Navy.

Many months ago, it was learned, AEC Chairman Glenn Seaborg suggested to Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara that nuclear power costs were coming down and that the Pentagon should give thought to wider application of atomic power to surface vessels.

The Navy may have lost the first battle but with powerful backing on Capitol Hill it may yet win the war.

Secretary of the Navy Fred Korth's abrupt resignation, announced yesterday, appears the tipoff that McNamara probably will deny the Navy permission to install nuclear engines in a new aircraft carrier for which Congress last year voted 280 million dollars.

The Navy is not talking about the studies it made to support its bid for the new carrier and, beyond that, for all future warships heavier than 8,000 tons.

But certain members of Congress are aware of the Navy findings, and the matter may come out on the public record if hearings are held.

Cost is a pivotal factor both on the issue of the carriers' future as a weapon either conventionally or atomic-powered, and the longer range matter of building warships of various kinds with nuclear power plants.

The United States some years ago made a start on a nuclear surface fleet but the Pentagon changed direction when costs began getting out of hand. The 85,000-ton Enterprise, world's first and only nuclear carrier, ran up a bill of 474 million dollars.

But Seaborg reported to McNamara that technological progress had been so marked that four nuclear engines installed in the new carrier could furnish about as much power as the eight reactors that propel the Enterprise.

He also said that the new type engines could use atomic fuel with more than double the life expectancy of those used in the Enterprise's engines.

Navy studies that followed showed that the costs of installing atomic power plants were dropping and are expected to drop even more. The nuclear engines also are expected to improve in output of power and in simplicity.

The prospects are so hopeful that atomic experts in the AEC and the Navy are giving serious thought to the practicality of mounting nuclear engines in fighting ships as small as 4,500-ton guided missile destroyers.

McNamara's experts reportedly have estimated it would cost another 180 million dollars to build the next carrier with atomic power. The Navy's calculations arrived at a figure nearly 60 million dollars lower.

Bound up in the whole question is the future size of the Navy's powerful carrier forces.

There have been strong hints that key defense officials are inclined to cut the Navy attack carrier fleet from 15 vessels to perhaps 13.

Making Of Anti-Bias Laws State Function, Mosk Rules

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The making of laws against discrimination in employment and housing is a state function, and cannot be done by cities and counties, Atty. Gen. Stanley Mosk ruled today.

The state's preemption in this field is covered by the Legislature's enactment of the Fair Employment Practice Act and the Rumford Fair Housing Act, Mosk said.

However, cities and counties may create local agencies for advisory functions on problems dealing with intergroup relations, Mosk said.

"It may well be that in fields involving discrimination in other than employment and housing, cities and counties may enact regulatory measures but this question is not now before us and no opinion is expressed thereon," Mosk continued.

Local ordinances would be "invalid only to the extent they attempt to impose additional requirements in a field that is preempted by the general law," Mosk said.

Clarification of the divisions of legislative authority was requested by John Anson Ford, chairman of the State Fair Employment Practices Commission.

The opinion said that President John F. Kennedy had requested all cities to take action against interracial inequities and that the FEPC subsequently requested mayors to set up human relation commissions.

This situation brought up legal questions which called for clarification as to the authority and jurisdiction of the cities and counties in the fields of employment and housing, Mosk said.

The creation of local advisory bodies "may appreciably assist in the accomplishment" of the FEPC goals, the opinion said.

Mosk Leaves For Far East

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Atty. Gen. Stanley Mosk and his wife left yesterday for a six-week vacation in the Far East.

Mosk said the trip had no political overtones, but admitted he would "try to go into Viet Nam."

He said that "it does any public official good to get out and move around and see what's going on in the rest of the world. But it's only a pleasure trip."

The Mosks will visit Japan, Formosa, Hong Kong, Thailand, Cambodia and Burma.

Collectors have taken as many as 500 gallons of "lady bug" beetles from a single 400-foot-square area.

New Navy Head May Stir Fuss

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — President John F. Kennedy's appointment of a new Navy secretary may set off a chain reaction leading to congressional explosion over a tentative Pentagon decision to deny the Navy any more nuclear carriers.

When Paul H. Nitze, named yesterday to succeed Fred Korth, comes before the Senate for confirmation, it seems certain he will be asked for his views on the continuing controvery over whether carriers should be phased out in favor of missiles and missile-firing submarines.

Korth, who said he was resigning to "attend to my pressing private affairs," probably will be asked to explain if his decision had any connection with his apparently futile efforts to get a new nuclear carrier built.

Associates said his defeat in the nuclear power argument sped his decision to quit.

Some Congress members said they thought Korth's action stemmed from the row over the controversial TFX warplane contract award, and Sen. Carl T. Curtis, (R-Neb.), said Korth will be questioned again about it.

Korth has told the Senate investigations subcommittee headed by Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.), that a bank he formerly headed in Fort Worth, Texas, joined several others in making a loan to the General Dynamics Corp.

General Dynamics was given the TFX contract by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara despite a claim by the Boeing Co. that it could produce the TFX (tactical fighter, experimental) cheaper. Korth supported the award to General Dynamics.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen said he thinks there will be no serious opposition to confirmation of Nitze, who now is assistant secretary of defense for international affairs. He was named to the post by Kennedy in 1961.

The nomination of Nitze, 55, will go to the Senate Armed Services Committee.

ITALIAN DISASTER AREA TO REBUILD

Crash Measures Voted To Help Restore Services In Area Hit By Big Flood

BELLUNO, Italy (AP) — The survivors of the Vaiont Dam disaster and the Italian government acted together today to bring life back to the desolate region.

Despite fears of another disaster, the death toll and the appalling destruction, there were signs the flood-stricken area might indeed live again.

With the death toll estimate between 2,300 and 3,000 hundreds of persons still were missing. But army commanders leading recovery operations said it appeared pointless to keep up full-scale digging operations in the hardened mud much longer.

In Rome, Premier Giovanni Leone's cabinet voted a series of crash measures to start the disaster area toward recovery.

All taxation of communities in the area was suspended until further notice. Local budgets will be supplemented as needed. Special funds were voted to speed new construction.

The government ordered state road, railroad and communications agencies to undertake an emergency program to get services back to normal as soon as possible.

In Longarone, hardest hit community, the seven surviving members of the 15-man Municipal Council voted to start rebuilding if the government would help.

FAIRFAX MOVES ON STREET REPAIR

Council Cautious Not To Set Precedent In Getting Estimate For Francis Avenue

The Fairfax City Council, cautious not to establish a precedent, last night decided to get a cost estimate for grading and oiling Francis Avenue.

Request for the street repairs came from Harold W. Cressy of 218 Francis Avenue who asked where his taxes were going "besides to playgrounds."

Councilman Freeman Blake said, "I am worried if we set up a precedent to maintain areas not maintained now." It was suggested that Cressy, if the council should repair the street, and other property owners sign a document stating they understood the repairs were a one-shot deal.

Mayor W. E. Radtke said, "Our primary problem is whether we can get to it." He was referring to a vacancy in the street department and Street Supt. William Dooley being in the hospital.

Edward Phillips, senior man on the street department crew, was appointed acting street superintendent at Dooley's salary of $693 a month until Dooley recuperates from a back injury suffered in a fall.

The council also decided to call for an examination for a street foreman to fill the vacancy.

The Fairfax City Council also:

1. Selected the firm of Roger F. Hooper and Associates to conduct an architectural feasibility study of either building a new city hall or remodeling the present one.
2. Decided to inspect the drainage problem on Porteous Avenue.
3. Asked Building Inspector Rolfe M. Ockenden for a reply to a letter from W. R. Price, who said Ockenden had made unreasonable demands for a building permit to remodel a residence at 207 Tamalpais Avenue.
4. Accepted the resignation of Police Officer David G. Sturges, effective Nov. 1, for personal reasons.
5. Heard Mayor Radtke suggest a public hearing on the television service franchise granted to Bob's TV of San Rafael, but took no action.
6. Learned that the Fairfax Women's Club would discuss the proposal to move council meetings to its building at its Oct. 15 meeting.
7. Authorized $125 be given to the department for purchase of bicycle licenses, which have been required by an ordinance never enforced.
8. Authorized expenditure of up to $1,000 to match the same amount from the Fairfax Merchants Assn. for purchase of new Christmas decorations for the streets.
9. Submitted to City Atty. Wallace S. Myers for study, the proposed uniform county-wide animal control ordinance which prohibits animals in commercial areas and in public parks.

All Meetings Due Notice

From now on, the public and the press will be notified of any meetings of Fairfax city councilmen, city commission and council sub-committees.

Mayor W. E. Radtke, at the end of last night's city council meeting, said that in view of a recent opinion of Atty. Gen. Stanley Mosk on the Ralph M. Brown Act "meetings will be scheduled in advance."

He urged fellow councilmen, who serve as commissioners, to consider "what types of meetings" should be set up in advance.

"It is a very delicate subject and should be given consideration," Radtke said.

Fatal Copter Crash Probed

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York Airways grounded all its "air-taxi" service today and Civil Aeronautics Board investigators sought to determine if metal fatigue in a rotor blade caused a fiery helicopter crash that killed six persons yesterday.

All six persons aboard the 25-seat, twin-blade craft died when the helicopter fell from the sky, crashed and burned.

A preliminary investigation by federal investigators indicated the crash was caused by a fracture in one of the two rotor-blades, usually the result of metal fatigue.

Boy's genuine marbles, made of stone from Bavarian quarries, were once manufactured in enormous quantities for export from Germany. Sixty such mills still existed at the end of the 19th Century.

NEW CANINES GAIN FAVOR AT COURT

LONDON (AP) — Has the royal fashion in dogs changed? Are Labradors in and Corgis out?

For whatever it's worth, Queen Elizabeth returned to London from her Scottish vacation yesterday and led two large black Labradors off the train.

The three Corgis who usually decorate the royal leash also were aboard the train, and they got a place in the palace limousine. But, alas, they were led from train to car by an attendant.

Warren's Papers To Stay Sealed

SACRAMENTO (AP)—The private papers collected by Chief Justice Earl Warren during his three terms as governor of California are going to remain under lock and key.

Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan disclosed yesterday he had received a request from Warren asking that the records be kept under seal until further notice.

When Warren resigned 10 years ago to accept appointment to the Supreme Court by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, he asked that the papers be sealed for 10 years or until his death.

Thousands of letters, state documents, newspaper clippings and other papers gathered during his years as governor from 1943 through 1953 were boxed and placed in the state archives.

"When I left the office of governor of California in October, 1953, I asked that all executive office files be placed under seal in the state archives for a period of 10 years," Warren wrote to Jordan.

"This time will soon elapse and I have decided to request that these records be continued under seal during my lifetime or unless notified otherwise at a future date."

Group Approves Tiburon, Belvedere Flood Control

A long-range master plan for flood control in Belvedere and Tiburon, involving a combination of pumps, gravity system and a holding pond, was approved in principle yesterday at a luncheon meeting of representatives of governmental bodies and interested private citizens.

Robert A. Sterling, secretary of the Tiburon Sanitary District, declared a drainage district will be formed and the first increment will be the installation of a pump to drain flood waters into the Belvedere Cove.

Those who join the district will be the ones to benefit, Sterling said. Those now "in" are the Tiburon Peninsula Club, Northwestern Pacific Railroad, Fred G. Zelinsky, Louis O. Britt, and residents of Cove Road.

Solving the problem of drainage into the Belvedere Lagoon will be a future step in the master plan.

Rain Damages Novato Pep Club Supplies

Damage estimated at $500 was done to photographic supplies, Pep Club banners, pins and sweaters in the Pep Club storage room at Novato High School during last Thursday night's rain.

Fostmeier Construction Co. of Petaluma will pay for the damages, said J. Michael Gragg, club adviser. Rain came through a ventilator fan, the cover of which had been left off when Fostmeier did remodeling work on the wing last summer, Gragg said.

Radio Parts Auction

An auction of radio parts and equipment will be held at 8 p. m. Friday night by the Tamalpais Amateur Radio Club meeting in the Veterans of Foreign Wars Hall on Machin Avenue in Novato. Nominations for officers next year will also be held at the meeting.

Model U.N. Chairman Announced In Marin

Committee chairmen have been named for the Marin Adult Model United Nations Assembly, to begin Oct. 24 at 8 p.m. in Redwood High School.

The session will open on United Nations Day, Oct. 24, and will be held on the three following Thursday evenings at the school.

John W. Brewer of Terra Linda, chairman of the California Adult Authority, will be chairman of the social, humanitarian and cultural committee. John G. Donhoff of Mill Valley, editor of the Mill Valley Record and a Mill Valley School District trustee, will be chairman of the political and security committee. Albert Gautraud of San Rafael, Terra Linda High School social studies teacher, will be chairman of the legal committee.

Delegations, which may be formed by any group of five persons, will be assigned to committees at the first session.

Marin Superior Court Judge Richard M. Sims Jr. will be president of the model assembly, and Dr. Surjit Singh, philosophy professor at San Francisco Theological Seminary, San Anselmo, will be secretary-general.

Back-To-School Night At Tam

Tamalpais High School's back to school night for parents will start at 7:30 p.m. today.

Parents are invited to attend their youngsters' classes which, for the evening, will be each of 10 minutes' duration.

The school announced erroneously in its news letter, the Tam Family, that the event would start at 8 p.m., principal Robert H. Prather said.

Out Of School

James L. Palmateer, Navy aviation electronics technician airman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Palmateer of 214 Prospect Drive, San Rafael, has been graduated from the Aviation Electronics Technician School, navigation course, at the Naval Air Technical Training Center, Memphis, Tenn.

Novato Officer Quits To Be Chief

Sgt. Floyd Hollowell resigned yesterday from the Novato Police Department to become chief of police at Newport, Ore.

The resignation will be effective Oct. 25, he said. He will assume his new position on Nov. 1 at Newport, where the present chief is retiring.

Holowell was one of the original officers hired on the Novato Police force by Chief Roy McLaren, after the department was organized just over three years ago. McLaren himself is leaving on Nov. 1 to take a position in Washington, D.C.

First Major Shop Center Due Larkspur

Downtown Larkspur will have its first major shopping center opening tomorrow morning at the new Value World in Larkspur Plaza at Magnolia Avenue and Doherty Drive.

City officials, Chamber of Commerce members and company representatives will hold a ceremony at 9:30 a.m. when doors to the building will be opened with a gold key. The huge center will be opened to the public at 10 a.m.

The Value World Center represents a three-million-dollar investment in property, building, equipment and inventory, encompassing 60,000 square feet under one roof in multiple shopping facilities. It is the first in a series of similar centers in Northern California projected as a subsidiary organization by Lee Brothers of Hayward.

Located in the building are a supermarket, along with other departments for hardware, housewares, electrical appliances, drugs, sporting goods, infants' and children's wear, women's wear, domestics, notions, jewelry, cameras, pet supplies, shoes, liquor, take-out food and many other products. A snack bar will be operated by Snack World, Inc., headed by Gordon Walker and Robert J. Williams of Novato.

Ground for the center was broken last April. Stolte, Inc., of Oakland is general contractor. The building is of contemporary modern design with exposed aggregate exterior panels featuring "Pacific Gold" rock. The interior features vinyl asbestos flooring and an acoustic spray textured ceiling.

The building is completely air-conditioned. Innovations are automatic check stands, dairy cases with air-curtain doors and four-decker upright frozen food cases. The parking area has 300 stalls for cars.

Principals in Value World, Inc., are William S. Lee, president; Robert N. Lee, vice president; William H. Lamm, secretary-treasurer, and Leon J. Sayous and Gilbert Johannessen, directors.

The company general manager is George Bird. Manager of the Larkspur center is John Dent.

Chances Of Heading Off Seashore Logging Remote

The possibility of heading off lumbering operations within the proposed boundaries of Point Reyes National Seashore seemed remote today as loggers prepared to move in and start cutting trees this week.

Donald Owens, owner of Owens Logging Co. of Bodega Bay, said, "We will start this week, depending on the weather." Owens has subcontracted to cut 1,500 acres of timber for Trio Lumber Co. of Sebastopol.

Owens said four or five of his employees would start the actual cutting of trees immediately. A logging road will be built into the southern portion of the area.

The only way to head off the timber cutting involves a complicated procedure which would take from a week to a month to complete.

To condemn the logging rights on the Palomarin Ranch, Bolinas Palisades and property belonging to Boyd Stewart of Olema involves the following, according to Thomas Kornelis, realty officer at the national seashore office:

Condemnation papers must be sent to the regional office of the National Park Service in San Francisco, then to the Department of Interior, then to the attorney general's office in Washington.

From there the papers must be sent back to the United States attorney's office in San Francisco, then filed in the United States District Court.

Planners Against 'In Lieu' Sausalito Parking Proposal

Sausalito planning commissioners agreed last night to recommend to city council elimination of the "in lieu" parking proposal in the proposed new zoning ordinance.

The "in lieu" proposal permits developers who do not have adequate parking to buy or reserve other parking nearby. Commissioners felt, said chairman Mel Wax, any contribution a developer might make in other parking would probably not be adequate, the parking might be so remote as to be used by other people, and anyone building anew should provide his own parking with the building.

The commission continued its public hearing on the zoning ordinance to 8 p.m. next Wednesday in the city hall.

The judge acted on the cases of Joseph Blau, a former vice president and treasurer of Equitable Plan Co., and Joseph Seltzer, banker and businessman.

department for 32 years, alleges:

1. Hingsbergen accepted $100 a month from California Western Wholesale Inc. of San Francisco from 1955 through 1957 and about $50 every other month from John E. Goggin of San Francisco, during the same period. In return Hingsbergen arranged "special assistance" in clearing title to cars and obtaining license plates.

2. Hingsbergen got two cars from licensed dealers at "prices substantially lower than those which could be obtained by other state employees." One was a used 1963 Buick, obtained from General Motors Buick Division of Burlingame by arrangement with Spencer Buick Co. of San Francisco. The other was a new 1963 Chevrolet from Dick Bullis Chevrolet of Burlingame, by arrangement with Neal McNeil of San Francisco.

3. Hingsbergen arranged for "courtesy cars" for others from Ben Alexander Ford, San Franciscos General Motors Cadillac Division of San Francisco, and Les Vogel Chevrolet of San Francisco.

4. Hingsbergen ordered special investigator Sterling E. Colthurst to accept money for making an official call to the Charles J. Worth Drayage Co. of San Francisco and warned Colthurst not to discuss any of the transactions. When Colthurst informed Hingsbergen that the company had given him $20 or $25, Hingsbergen, according to the complaint, telephoned the firm and obtained a bottle of whisky, which he gave to Colthurst.

Colthurst, of 92 Robinhood Drive, San Rafael, has since been named supervising investigator for the department in Northern California.

Felon Stabber Given Life

Judge Thomas F. Keating of Marin Superior Court yesterday denied a motion by Robert Gene Glover for a new trial and formally sentenced him to life imprisonment for stabbing a fellow prisoner at San Quenton Prison. The sentence had been determined earlier by a jury.

Glover said he would appeal the ruling. The 31-year-old convict claimed he was given an unfair trial because the court allowed him to appear in manacles before the jury. He is already serving a life term.

The effect of the sentence will be to delay all possibility for parole for at least nine years.

San Rafael High Gets $203,282

San Rafael High School District has been allocated $203,282 in federal funds for an addition to San Rafael High, $23,000 more than expected.

"We estimated that we would get from $150,000 to $180,000," said Charles L. Condrotte, business manager for San Rafael schools.

Rep. Donald H. Clausen (R-Crescent City) reported yesterday that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare allocated the funds under the public law providing building funds to districts educating students from military bases or other federally-connected operations.

Condrotte said San Rafael High School District "has been counting on these funds to assist in the building of a new wing at San Rafael High School." Expansion is to provide 34 classrooms and a new library, with one row of existing undersize classrooms to be demolished.

Language Of Sacraments To Be Modern

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Ecumenical Council voted overwhelmingly today to extend the use of local languages to the sacraments, as well as the Mass, keeping Latin only for the very heart of the rites.

The more than 2,000 prelates meeting in St. Peter's Basilica also agreed to change the name of extreme unction, the Sacrament of Last Anointing' to "anointing of the sick." This was done to remove the fear-of-death overtones of the sacrament's present name.

A council press spokesman said the prelates voted 2,133 to 19, with seven ballots voided, for extending the vernacular to the sacraments of baptism, confirmation, penance, matrimony, and extreme unction.

Unruh Shuffles Committee Posts

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Speaker Jesse M. Unruh (D-Los Angeles) abolished the Assembly's lobbyist control committee today as part of a shakeup of house committees.

Unruh eliminated two other committees—livestock and dairies and manufacturing, oil and mining industry—in a move to consolidate Democratic holdings in the Assembly.

He appointed two Democrats to posts held by Republicans before the legislature's big blowup of 1963.

Unruh merged the committee on legislative representation—which overseas some 500 lobbyists—with the rules committee, headed by a close political associate.

The actions came as an outgrowth of the Assembly's partisan fight during the 1963 session. Before it was over, the Democratic majority pushed through a rules change stripping Republicans of committee chairmanships and the right to vote for speaker.

Republicans accused Unruh of "bossism" and refused his terms for restoring GOP chairmen. They had tangled during the session over Republican refusal to vote on Gov. Edmund G. Brown's augmented budget.

Announcing the latest changes the speaker said in a press release:

"These consolidations are designed to strengthen the Assembly committee structure through the merger of committees engaged in similar subject matter."

The changes are being made on an interim basis and will be revaluated during the budget session next February.

The lobby control committee, formerly under the command of Carl Britschgi (R-Redwood City) was turned over to Chairman Tom Bane (D-North Hollywood) of the Rules Committee.

Bane will continue to head rules and the rules members—four Democrats and three Republicans — will also act as members of Legislative Representation.

Unruh said he hasn't decided whether to activate the government organization committee, formerly headed by Milton Marks, San Francisco.

The work of livestock and dairies was turned over to agriculture, which got a new chairman—John Williamson (D-Bakersfield).

Williamson replaces Alan G. Pattee (R-Salinas).

Livestock and Dairies was also headed by a Republican, Frank Belotti of Eureka. But Unruh said Williamson has indicated he will make Belotti head of an Agriculture subcommittee on livestock and dairies.

Williamson gave up his job as chairman of the public utilities and corporations committee to make the switch.

Replacing him will be Joseph M. Kennick (D-Long Beach) who had been chairman of Manufacturing, Oil and Mining Industry. That committee's duties will be handled by Public Utilities and Corporations.

Livestock and dairies members will be placed on agriculture and legislators on manufacturing, oil and mining industry will go to public utilities and corporations.

Arsonist Sets $1.5 Million Fires — Hospital Is 'Next'

MONMOUTH, Ill. (UPI) — An arsonist set fires which destroyed two lumber yards and most of a factory today, injuring three firemen and forcing a family to flee its home.

City officials said damage might reach 1.5 million dollars. Fifteen fire departments battled the flames.

State troopers equipped with riot guns formed a cordon around Monmouth Hospital and the Colonial Nursing Home when an anonymous telephone called threatened that the structures were "next."

Other guards were posted around industrial plants and in the business district of this quiet college town of 10,000, 200 miles southwest of Chicago.

Fire Chief Dale Moore said the fires definitely were the work of an arsonist.

A man was picked up on the grounds of the Western Stoneware Co., target of numerous bomb and arson threats in the past five weeks. He was questioned for several hours but was released.

Official said there were no leads to the identity of the arsonist.

Group On Racial Equality Asked

The Marin Federation of Improvement Clubs will ask Marin County supervisors to create a coordinating council for racial equality.

The council would make studies on racial minorities in the county and hear complaints on any unfairness, according to Mary Henry, secretary of the federation.

The federation took the action last night at its meeting in the county courthouse after hearing a talk by Arthur Brown of Marin City, vice chairman of the Marin Congress of Racial Equality. He told the group that such a county council is needed.

The federation also went on record in favor of re-activating the Richardson Bay master plan as the best means of controlling location of bulkheads and limits of tideland filling.

The action came after Gilbert Darrock of Mill Valley cited a recent Independent-Journal editorial which said too many agencies now have a say, and authority should be returned to the county through the master plan.

The group also heard from Annie Jameson, in charge of the county foster home program. She said there is a constant need for foster homes.

West Marin School Finances Due Study

Trustees of the West Marin School District last night ordered a preliminary look at next year's finances in light of loss of revenue from sale of land to the federal government for the Point Reyes National Seashore.

Trustees want to know as soon as possible how much tax revenue will be lost, Supt. Howard Brose reported.

Brose, in his first year as superintendent of the district, was also given the go-ahead for his proposed cost study of the district's two 10-year-old buses. Trustees may soon be faced with the purchase of additional buses.

The board also authorized Brose to rewrite existing school policies, bringing them up to date and filling in missing items.

The authorization was prompted by loss of the policy governing use of school facilities by fund-raising groups. The district requires a fee, but the policy on this could not be located.

The board voted to permit promotion of first grade of kindergarten pupils 5 years old or older who are in the top 5 per cent of their age group in mental ability. All such advancements are to take place prior to Dec. 2.

The board adjourned until Nov. 18 since the regular meeting date would be Nov. 11, Veterans Day.

Mental Health Group To Meet

Mrs. Daniel A. Collins, chairman, and County Administrator Alan Bruce will report on conferences they had with administrators of mental health programs in Berkeley and Contra Costa County.

One of the goals of the mental health advisory board is to set up an outpatient clinic for mental health care.

Art, Garden Fair Planning To Expand Shakespeare Fete

Three productions are planned at next year's Marin Shakespeare Festival, members of the Marin Art and Garden Center were told yesterday.

John Brebner, festival director, said the next season will mark the 400th anniversary of Shakespear's birth, and expansion of the festival is proposed to include performances of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," "Taming of the Shrew," and a third play, possibly one of the pastoral comedies.

Brebner said the 1963 fesival was a "great success." His report was among several on activities at the center, given before the center's annual membership meeting in Ross.

About 50 persons attended the meeting. Mrs. Norman B. Livermore, president, said election of officers was postponed because several members of the board of directors could not be present.

From 1916 to 1962, more than 2,950,000 coyotes were slain in the government's predator control program.

Two Notes Found On Bridge Touch Off Search For Body

Two rambling suicide notes found on the Golden Gate Bridge yesterday have touched off a search for the body of William A. Brandt, 26, of Daly City, who failed to appear in Marin County Superior Court today on a charge of possession of marijuana.

Brandt had been scheduled for a jury trial, but the jury was dismissed last week when the defendant agreed to change his plea to guilty. He was arrested Aug. 5 by Deputy Sheriff Hilary Lannin for drunken driving and charged with the marijuana count after a box of marijuana was found under his car.

Brandt's car was found at the north end of the bridge, and a black sweater and a tennis shoe were discovered on the bridge by Highway Patrol Officers Thomas Foley and Angelo Corvino.

In one note Brandt wrote he intended to take an overdose of sleeping pills. In other, addressed to his father, he said he was sorry for the "disgrace I have brought upon the family." His father reported Brandt missing yesterday to Daly City police.

Judge N. Charles Brusatori, working on the assumption that the suicide note was part of hoax, ordered Brandt's $1,050 bail forfeited and issued a bench warrant for his arrest, with bail raised to $5,000.

San Marin School Site Action Taken

Condemnation proceedings on an elementary school site in San Marin were authorized last night by Novato Unified School District trustees.

The district has attempted to purchase the 10 acres site from Sunset Petroleum Corp., developers of San Marin, but has no firm committment on price, said Supt. James G. Bunker.

"The state allocations board last Tuesday allowed us a total of $144,000 to purchase and improve the San Marin site. We must conclude the negotiations within one month of that date, or start condemnation proceedings," Bunker stated.

The Novato School District board also:

1. Authorized installation of 875 bleacher seats in the new gymnasium at a cost of $8,700 from Safeway Bleachers Co.
2. Granted a $2,670 contract to Novato Disposal Co. for garbage removal for the year.
3. Accepted the resignation of Joseph McCaslin as janitor and hired Melvin D. Bauer at $2 an hour to replace him.

The City of Gloucester pays for its holdings of British Crown land with an enormous eel pie.

Social Science School Speaker Set

E. Robert Scrofani, who has been named outstanding young man of the year by the San Francisco Junior Chamber of Commerce, will speak at the second annual charter dinner of the Marin Branch of the Henry George School of Social Science.

The dinner will be held at 7:15 p.m., Friday at Dominic's Harbor Restaurant, 507 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael. Reservations may be made with Dr. Arthur Ablin, 710 C Street, San Rafael.

Kindergarten Policy Passed In Mill Valley

Mill Valley School District trustees last night unanimously adopted a policy for special promotion of some kindergarten pupils to first grade.

To be considered, a child must be at least 5 years old and in the top 5 per cent of his age group in general mental ability. The promotion requires written approval of the parent.

Dr. Logan T. Miles, assistant superintendent for educational services, was appointed principal of the 1964 summer session, and a new guide for evaluation and improvement of teaching services was reviewed and approved.

Supe. G. R. McConnell reported that wiring has been completed in the auditorium of Old Mill School. Trustees approved a contract with Bay Area Education Research Services to extend services to June, 1964, at $150.

Glenn Skelton, Park School principal, will discuss "special education" at the board meeting Oct. 28 in the first of seven such presentations.

Way Cleared For 4th Quarry Project Plan

The Corte Madera Planning Commission, which has rejected three plans for apartment development of a 20-acre quarry site west of Highway 101, last night cleared the way for presentation of a fourth.

The new plan by Kaehler-Farrar Development, Inc., will call for 290 apartment units. The first plan called for 384. This was later reduced to 290.

Planning commissioners last night voted 4-1 "to adopt in concept the proposed development as presented and discussed with the commission." The dissenter was Commissioner William T. Sheehan.

The Corde Madera Town Council was asked, after Kaehler-Farrar's first plan was submitted, to rezone the 20 acres for duplex use. The developers have obtained a superior court order temporarily restraining the town from rezoning the property.

Suggestions for revisions were submitted by letter last night, then discussed for one and one-half hours by commissioners, developers John J. Farrar Jr. and Reuben W. Kaehler, and James B. McKenney, attorney for the developers.

Forty per cent of the units would be single bedroom. No building would be higher than three stories and many would be two stories. Building heights have been lowered each time the commission rejected plans.

A number of other items kept the commission to 1:30 a.m. today.

Revised plans for a Campbell Bishop Chevrolet agency at Paradise Drive and the Corte Madera overpass were approved, subject to granting of a variance by the board of adjustments for a sign atop the building.

Evening Coat

Maybe compact cars have something to do with the trend in evening coats. At any rate, what's being trumpeted for chic damsels for fall is the short evening coat. The knee-lengths show with ankle-length dresses.

Sausalito School Annex Plan Studied

Sausalito School District with its present facilities could handle an additional 633 pupils, Supt. Marcus F. Davis told trustees last night reporting on proposed annexation of Mill Valley School District land in Tennessee Valley.

The Sausalito District enrollment is now 1,067 and 1,700 pupils could be handled, he said.

If the need should develop, the board agreed it would attempt to obtain an additional school site in Tennessee Valley.

The proposal for annexation was initially made by Sausalito. The two boards will meet jointly Nov. 4 in Mill Valley to discuss it.

Davis reported that the Marin City study center at Richardson Bay School had 50 pupils from junior high level and 40 from high school level at its first session. The center is open each Monday, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. in six classrooms to provide study space and volunteer tutors for pupils.

Noah Adair, teacher of "new mathematical concepts for parents" classes, reported 35 parents have enrolled in the classes which meet Tuesday nights at Richardson Bay School.

The new law which permits kindergarten pupils to move into first grade without remaining a full year was discussed but no action taken, said Davis.

Trustees agreed that G. M. Richards, San Francisco consulting mechanical engineer, may draw plans and specifications for Central School's proposed fire sprinkler system, the fee not to exceed $1,000.

They reviewed the proposed improvements to Ebbtide Avenue and instructed Davis to work with the City of Sausalito and the State Division of Highways to work out improvements for diversion of traffic from Richardson Bay School.

Marin City Traffic Will Be Slowed

Traffic at the entrance to Marin City will be reduced to one lane for a two-week period while repairs are made to a 100 - foot strip of roadway which has been broken by heavy use of trucks and buses.

The entrance and exit will be torn up, one at a time, a six-inch concrete base laid and new asphalt poured, Bert Klahn, executive director of the Marin County Housing Authority, said today. He said commuters who normally park on Donohue Avenue are being asked to park somewhere else during the period.

Commercial Zone Approved Near Novato Shop Center

Rezoning from apartments to commercial for 10 acres west of Highway 101 and south of the Novato Fair Shopping Center was granted Harry Heifetz last night by the Novato Planning Commission.

The long, narrow strip of land connects the shopping center with Heifetz's 80-acres Scottsdale development. The commission continued the hearing on the Scottsdale master plan until Oct. 28.

The tentative map of Gnoss Estates unit 1, planned by Westwood Homes, Inc., on the south side of Olive Avenue, was approved.

The Novato Planning Commission also:

1. Approved division of 22,619 square feet on Pastel Lane into two lots as requested by Joseph Silva.
2. Granted an excavation permit for Lynwood Heights unit 2 to engineer Carlos E. Gonzalez.
3. Granted architectural supervision for a 20-by-24 foot classroom for Bethel Baptist Church on Novato Boulevard at Simmons Lane.
4. Set its next meeting for Nov. 14 because the second Monday, Nov. 11, is a holiday.

Wool Grower Session

Range management will be discussed by Dr. Merton Love of the Department of Agronomy of University of California, Davis, at the annual fall meeting of the North Bay Wool Growers Assn. Saturday at 10 a.m. at the Bellevue Union School, 3223 Primrose Avenue, Santa Rosa.

Ex-Marinite Concert Set Tomorrow

Pianist Richard D. Norris, a 12-year resident of Marin, will give his first concert since returning from extensive tours abroad at 8:30 p.m. tomorrow in the Palace of the Legion of Honor, San Francisco.

Norris began the study of piano at the age of 5, and at 16 made his concert debut with the Long Beach Little Symphony Orchestra.

He came to Marin in the spring of 1950, lived a year and one-half in Corte Madera, moved from there to Ross, then in 1955 to Tiburon, where he remained until leaving for his first concert tour of Europe in 1961. He followed this with a second European tour last year.

He was organist at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Belvedere during his Tiburon residence. He now resides in Edmonds, Wash.

His program Wednesday will include Schubert's Fantasie in C Major, opus 15, "The Wanderer"; Chopin's "Sonata in B Flat Minor, opus 35; Debussy's "L'Isle Joyeuse," and four selections from Liszt.

A sale of old books Saturday by Sausalito's Friends of the Library realized about $150, Mrs. Donald J. Duncan Jr., Friends president, said today. The funds will be used toward a new library in Sausalito.

Youngsters Head New Citizen List

Youngsters led the parade of Marin County residents who became naturalized U.S. citizens last month in San Francisco.

Youngest was 4-year-old Robert Kirk Wimmer, adopted son of M/Sgt. and Mrs. Lloyd Wimmer of 85 Diane Lane, Larkspur.

Robert, a native of Kaiserslautern, was adopted while Wimmer was serving with the Army in Germany. "We were there when he was born," Mrs. Wimmer said.

It was a "tough fight" to adopt the child at that time because German newspapers were writing editorials against giving German children away, she said. "We had to stay another year to get him."

The majority of new citizens in Marin County, seven out of 13, are youngsters.

Sworn in last month in San Francisco were:

Sept. 17—Four children of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gillooly of 441 Bolling Drive, Hamilton Air Force Base, Edward, 2; Mary F., 3, and Michael Christopher and Stephen Gerard, both 5; and Mrs. Shigeko Hannum of 130 Bodkin Avenue, Hamilton Air Force Base.

Sept. 10—Marion Adele Bergman, 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Thomas Bergman, 64 Deer Park Avenue, San Rafael; Mrs. Belen Maria Dahm, 117 Tamalpais Avenue, Mill Valley; Paul Victor Barral, 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Barral, Fort Barry; and Mrs. Silvia Sauter, 1825 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael.

Sept. 3—Miss Edda Gertrud Bansemer, 186 Corte Madera Avenue, Mill Valley; Mrs. Meiko Richards, 610 San Jose

This week Marin County Republicans are being asked to join up for the next campaign . . . and to give a buck or more to the G.O.P.

Talking "politics" doesn't do a whole lot of good by itself. You need guys and gals to ring doorbells, to address postcards, and to raise dough for printing, postage, and all the rest.

Putting it plainly, we need your help now!

How about giving us a hand as we gear-up for the '64 campaign. You'll be glad you did!

Senior Citizen Aide Outlines His Program

RICHARD PHENIX
The senior's man

If you belong to any organization interested in activities for senior citizens, you can inquire of a new county-wide coordinator, who works out of the office of the Marin Council of Community Services, 2144 Fourth Street, San Rafael.

He is Richard Phenix, 44, coordinator of services. He was community organization consultant with the United Community Fund in San Francisco before coming to work in Marin last July. He has a master's degree in social administration from Ohio State University.

Phenix will work closely with the Citizens Advisory Committee for Community Services project.

He outlined this five-point program as his project goals:

1. Foster an attitude throughout the county as favorable as possible for development of services for older people.

2. Assist organizations to initiate programs—anything they want. "I plan to concentrate on communities where organized groups want to use me and are willing to work themselves," he said.

3. Develop in San Rafael as comprehensive a program as possible for older people and use this as a pilot project for the rest of the county.

4. Develop a second center of activity in another part of the county. "Novato is ideal in terms of geography, but interest and activity will determine where the second center will be," Phenix said.

5. Work out one project which will really catch the imagination. "One possible project would be to start a monthly mimeographed publication for senior citizens and naming correspondents from all over the county to feed information. These could be distributed because we don't have the money to mail them. Thus we could establish a network of communications among all senior citizens even though all of them could not get together physically."

WALTER R. CASTRO JR.
Honored Mason

Castro Jr. Is Honored By De Molay

Walter R. Castro Jr. of San Rafael, potentate of Islam Temple, Ancient Order of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, in San Francisco, was awarded the highest honor of the Order of the De Molay last week.

The honorary degree of "Legion of Honor of the Order of De Molay" was conferred upon Castro, who was the first potentate of Islam Temple to go up through the ranks of De Molay before entering membership in Masonry and the Shrine.

The Legion of Honor is conferred upon former members of De Molay who have distinguished themselves by leadership in adult life.

Castro was selected for the honor at a recent meeting of the International Supreme Council of the Order of De Molay.

Castro is a past master councilor of the Marin Chapter, Order of De Molay, and a past president of the Marin Shrine Club.

Furlough Program Figure Sentenced

Rodney Junior Cox, 37, of Tomales, who left Marin County Jail Sept. 4 on the work furlough program and kept going, was sentenced to six months in jail yesterday by Judge N. Charles Brusatori in Marin County Superior Court.

Cox had been sentenced to jail originally for failing to support his family. He was recaptured in Santa Rosa Sept. 11.

$150 Watch Missing

A man's $150 watch was reported missing from a jewelry boy by John Leon Lallier, 777 H. L. Hunt, Arthur Azevedo, Meadowsweet Drive, near Oscar Montgomery and Stanley Corte Madera, yesterday. Lallier told Sheriff's Deputy Dennis Shine he had just moved his belongings from one apartment in the building to another, and the watch was missed after the transfer was made.

Arsonist Sent To Prison For Burning Home

Victor Andrew Gipson, who bangs bongos and burns houses, was sentenced to state prison yesterday by Judge Joseph G. Wilson, who presided over the Marin County Superior Court trial in which a jury found Gipson guilty of arson.

Sentencing is usually a routine affair, over in a few minutes, but defense attorney Carl Shapiro put up a strong fight to have Gipson, 27, of Tamalpais Valley, but on probation, saying sending him to prison would be punishing him for being sick.

Gipson was charged with burning down his own house at 363 Pine Hill Road March 19. He piled his wife's belongings in the middle of the each of the three rooms of the house and set them afire. He then stood by and watched firemen work.

His wife and two small children had left a week before. The day before the fire, sheriff's officers had received complaints from neighbors that Gipson was playing his bongo drums in the creek near his home.

Shapiro cited psychiatric reports in the probation report on Gipson, which recommended prison, and said the man was obviously mentally unbalanced. The reports called Gipson neurotic and out of touch with reality, but not psychotic.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Charles L. Convis argued that Gipson had been on probation before and it had not worked. He said prison was the only alternative left. The judge agreed, reluctantly.

"If the probation office can't handle him," commented Shapiro, "then maybe we should get some probation officers who can."

Arson carries a sentence of two to 20 years.

Sheriff Posse Wins Awards

The color guard of the Mounted Sheriff's Posse of Marin County won two second-place awards in the Columbus Day parade in San Francisco Sunday, one unexpectedly.

The group placed second as a color guard unit and then placed second as a sheriff's posse even though they were not a full posse.

Color bearers from the Marin County unit were Capt. H. L. Hunt, Arthur Azevedo, Oscar Montgomery and Stanley Gobbin.

They will compete for the state championship trophy at the Grand National Livestock Exposition at the Cow Palace Oct. 25.

Lack Of Newspaper Would Cripple The Community

National Newspaper Week
Guest Editorial

By IRVING CHAPMAN
San Rafael Merchant, Civic Leader

If for some unforeseen reason our newspapers were not published for the next month, the effect on the economic health of our community would be chaotic. Most of us take for granted the myriad of detail, research and thought that makes up our daily paper and we just do not realize the effect, the truly big difference our newspapers make in our lives.

We must be aware that most of the news items pertaining to matters of national economy have a direct effect on the economy of our own community—even our own personal activities. Whether the news heralds an anticipated boom or an impending depression, the impact on our local business activities is direct and startling.

Matters as reported in the local press, such as increased interest rates, anticipated labor strife, unusual weather conditions, all have their effect.

The theatre advertisements affect our movie going, the sports pages urge our attendance at athletic events, often spelling the difference between financial success or failure for that high school, college or professional group.

Certainly the many vendors of foods would not contract for the great coverage they do unless it was a proven fact that advertising in our newspapers has a definite effect on the purchasing habits of the public. Perhaps today you were influenced by a certain market advertising items that you were in need of and at a price that you felt was competitive and fair.

The daily competition between the shopping center and the established downtown section rages constantly in the newspaper; a battle royal certain to influence your spending habits and mine. The introduction of new automobiles, the latest fashions publicized by local fashion stores that prove once and for all that a trip to San Francisco is not necessary.

Just imagine, if you will, that effect the newspapers have regarding the development of residential areas. The picture, the story, the advertisment that makes it advantageous to at least visit and view the new project. The latest stock reports, the classified section, with its tremendous influence on real estate sales and job opportunities, combine to influence each and every reader.

Yes, whether you realize it or not, your newspaper makes a BIG difference in your economic life.

Political Amnesia Afflicting Kennedy On Party Acts

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy has a tendency to political amnesia when his Democrats join Republicans to do him in. He finds it easier to remember what the Republicans did.

He said once Republicans have made "no" a political program, but so have a lot of his Democrats.

The country has in effect three political parties—Democrats, Southern Democrats, and Republicans — just because the Southerners have gone against him so many times.

THEY OPERATE under the Democratic label but can make the Democratic party's campaign promises look like balloons in a tack factory any time it suits them, which is often, to clasp hands with Republicans.

Two recent examples:

1. Southern Democrats, against Kennedy's civil rights program from the start, are expected to try to filibuster it to death.

2. They harpooned him when the House voted to cut foreign aid $585 million below what he asked.

KENNEDY RUSHED to denounce the Republicans for the blow. But they could not have done it if a big bunch of Democrats hadn't joined them.

The Democrats have such a majority over the Republicans in both houses of Congress they could put through any program Kennedy wanted —provided they stuck together—even if all the Republicans voted no. They don't stick together.

Defection of the South has haunted Kennedy. There was a shining example of it last year.

That was when the Senate, with Democrats outnumbering Republicans 64-36, killed Kennedy's program of medical care for the aged.

Kennedy made this a campaign issue in the 1962 elections, blaming "nearly all the Republicans and a handful of Democrats" who joined them for his defeat. It was more than a handful. It was almost a third of all the Senate Democrats.

STILL, Kennedy won't fight with Congress. He never has. He just complains occasionally, particularly about the Republicans. He said: "There is no sense in raising hell and then not being successful."

After his complaint about the Republicans' part in cutting foreign aid, Republican Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona cited some of Kennedy's own record on foreign aid when he was a Democratic senator.

He listed four occasions between 1953 and 1958 when Kennedy voted for foreign aid cuts in President Eisenhower's program.

TEN BRIGHT CANDLES

His native state honored Chief Justice Earl Warren on the tenth anniversary of his appointment to the Supreme Court, yet if anything he was honored more by the high court itself. Seven of the associate justices were present as Justice Warren addressed the California Bar Association in San Francisco. It was a mark of respect properly due a man who has led the court in some of its most difficult years and against some of the bitterest criticism of it, and to the critics the chief justice had wise words to say.

The civil rights issues that have led to so much hostility toward the court are worldwide in their implications, he said. They are part of a demand for individual and national freedom that is growing across the globe. Respecting America alone, however, these issues arrive at the Supreme Court uninvited. The court does not initiate them, but as a court of review it cannot with justice ignore them or stand on old precedents against which the very times protest. If the court blocked changes it would be unjust.

Finally, the Chief Justice offered sound advice to states' rights advocates. If the state courts were vigilant in protecting individual liberty, he said, they would have no trouble with the federal courts. It is state neglect, in law as in other fields, that has invited or commanded federal action. As governor of California, Justice Warren saw to the rights and responsibilities of his state. As Chief Justice, he has for a decade seen to the liberties of the American people.

Tiburon Dogs Of Loose Habits

Editor, Independent-Journal:

As a home owner in the residential area of Tiburon I wish to offer comment on the loose running dogs in this area.

It is daily procedure for at least 10 dogs to use my lawns and others around for their daily constitutionals. I have a dog of my own, and if he isn't in sight I call him in, for I don't want him on my neighbors' property.

After planting new grass last spring, at least one-third of it was either dug up or trampled on by these dogs.

If dog owners would keep an eye on their animals' whereabouts a lot of unnecessary damage could be prevented.

Phone Poll Hasty And Ill-Advised

Editor, Independent-Journal:

This morning, via telephone, I was asked if I would join other members of the San Rafael High School Executive Board in issuing a statement expressing confidence in Dr. Bert C. Corona, as superintendent of the San Rafael School District, because Dr. Corona appears to have been criticized unjustly and unforwarned by a member of the board of education.

I declined to lend my name to such a statement because by singling out Dr. Corona and by its very omissions, the statement implied criticism of the San Rafael High School faculty, and tacit support of book censorship.

I further stated than I personally did not have sufficient information to even form an opinion, let alone sign a statement. That it appeared from the press reports that several meetings of administrators and faculty had, as a matter of fact, taken place. That several members of the board of education itself, according to the press, stated that they had no knowledge of the matter and would like to be informed of what was going on; and that if the members of the board of education felt they were not fully informed, it would certainly be presumptuous of me to think I was informed enough to lend my name to a statement.

I expressed the view that I considered the telephone poll of all the members of the PTA executive board to be hasty and ill-advised because it did not give the members an opportunity to examine and evaluate the facts or the issues involved; that I believe the central issue to be the matter of censorship, and that I would never in any way appear to lend my name in support of psychotic "book-burners."

I stated that if, however, the statement were revised to express confidence in the integrity of Dr. Corona, of Mr. Alfred Thomson, principal of San Rafael High School, and of every member of the teaching faculty at San Rafael High School, I would at this time willingly support such a statement.

Obligations Of Marin Voters

Editor, Independent-Journal:

The second editorial in your Oct. 10 edition titled "Mysterious Mr. Average Marinite" asks the question "Can it be that Mr. Average Marinite is the Man Nobody Knows?"

Most authorities tell us that economic achievement (Marinites have it, according to statistics) is normally proportional to previous scholastic achievement. Assuming Marinites are well educated they know of our privilege to participate in government, and as leading citizens of our state one would expect them to assume their obligations in local elections.

But your Oct. 9 edition tells us that only a FEW of the registered voters took the few minutes necessary to express their opinion in the San Rafael School election on matters that effect the ultimate desireability of the community in which they live.

The Man Nobody Knows does visit the polls for presidential elections and Marinites set records of nearly perfect attendance, an item to be proud of if the same were true at all of our elections.

I hope the voters in the San Anselmo Elementary School District set a new record of attendance at the polls for their bond, loan and tax election and I also hope the fever spreads to the Man Nobody Knows throughout Marin causing everyone to assume his obligation in local as well as national elections. Then Marinites would have another first to be proud of: government by all the residents, not the few everybody knows.

THE ALLEN-SCOTT REPORT

Bobby Kennedy Is Boss Of Undercover Program

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON—The so-called counter-insurgency program — President Kennedy's once loudly-touted plan to assist foreign governments to combat subversion and revolution—is undergoing exhaustive congressional scrutiny.

This unannounced investigation was instituted by Representative Clarence Cannon, (D-Mo.), veteran chairman of the powerful House Appropriations Committee. He has set up a large special staff, including a number of borrowed FBI men, to conduct this potentially highly explosive probe.

Cannon decided an extensive inquiry was called for as the result of a number of disconcerting disclosures in the course of his committee's months-long closed-door hearings on the budgets of government agencies. Much of this very revealing testimony will never be published as it has been censored on the ground of being classified information.

BUT IT CAN be reported that foremost among these backstage discoveries were:

Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy is the real boss of the Interdepartmental Committee on Counterinsurgency established by his brother, the president, to direct this program. Nominal chairman is Undersecretary of State U. Alexis Johnson, veteran career diplomat with wide experience in Iron Curtain countries. But the real ruler of the program is Bobby Kennedy.

Large amounts of foreign aid and Central Intelligence Agency funds are being used to finance the worldwide activities of the counter-insurgency plan. Most of this money is being spent in organizing, training, equipping and maintaining special police (security) forces.

The Appropriations Committee has ascertained that $3 million a year of such funds is being expended for this purpose in South Viet Nam; more than $615,000 in the Dominican Republic during the seven-month regime of deposed President Bosch; and around $500,000 in Honduras, where President Villeda Morales was ousted by a military coup. In each of these government overthrows, the U. S.-financed and trained special police either did nothing or were wholly ineffectual.

LARGE SUMS are being spent for special counter-insurgency forces in Peru, Bolivia, Colombia and Venezuela — the last three seriously threatened by Communist terrorists on one hand and military take-overs on the other.

The House investigators are particularly interested in learning the reason for Bobby Kennedy's exceptional interest in and domination of the counter-insurgency program — in view of the fact that it operates abroad and largely in the military field.

Privately, the probers deem this undercover situation another instance of the young attorney general's active participation in virtually everything that transpires in his brother's administration.

BOBBY HAS his hand in every important policy and decision at home and abroad —regardless of whether it has anything to do with the Justice Department or not.

The investigators propose to uncover the extent and nature of his activities in the counter-insurgency program, which proved a dismal flop in Honduras and the Dominican Republic, and is under sharp attack in South Viet Nam where the U. S.-financed special forces have been used by the Diem brothers to attack and jail thousands of Buddhist priests and students, and beat up American newsmen.

SOUTH WINS AT LAST

Seniority Plays Major Part In Committee Assignments

By J. W. DAVIS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Paul Douglas (D-Ill.), complaining the other day about the power enjoyed by Southern members of Congress, declared:

"The sober truth is that while Grant might have taken Richmond, the South has taken Capitol Hill."

Douglas, who wants new laws on civil rights, was somewhat in the position of a football coach talking about how tough the opposition is.

STILL, as can be demonstrated mathematically, the South does have a strong position at the Capitol. This is a factor contributing to new talk of diluting the role of seniority in reaching the top in Congress.

As things now stand, seniority is the basic factor in getting good committee assignments and chairmanships.

Southerners hold more than their geographical share because so many of them have been in Congress for so long, sometimes sympathetic and sometimes opposed to national administration purposes.

THE NEW TALK is circulating among a group of self-styled "loyal" House Democrats who say they would not abandon seniority. But they would strike at the seniority of those members who were found to be actively disloyal to the party in presidential elections.

They would have the party caucus, which makes committee assignments in the House, pass over those representatives who support the opposition in 1964.

Those named could be removed from committees on which they have long seniority or could be denied further promotion on the committees. This would lessen their chances of becoming chairmen.

AN APPRAISAL of what chances this movement has will have to await the 1964 presidential campaign, to see who among the Democratic members might bolt the national ticket. Some Southerners have bolted in the past, and some are restive about 1964.

But the chances of Congress tinkering very much with the claims of seniority are not all strong.

This is true even though arguments can be made that the system gives power to men who are not necessarily qualified.

The question that up to now has countered attempts to junk the system is this: What better way is there to choose the chairmen?

CHAIRMEN could be appointed by the speaker of the House and the Senate majority leader. But 50 years ago Speaker Joseph Cannon had that power and abused it so that the House took it away from him.

Flanagan bumped into his pal Dooley just outside the Whirlaway bar. Neither distinguished citizen was feeling the slightest pain. "Flanagan, me boy," said Dooley, "you're just in time to come to McGrath's wake with me."

"A fine idea," allowed Flanagan, "but I never had the pleasure of your friend McGrath's acquaintance."

Dooley assured Flanagan that this made no difference whatever, and the two reeled into McGrath's homestead, where a rousing wake was proceeding full-blast. Flanagan just made the grand piano in the front parlor when his legs gave way beneath him. As he sank down, his jaw gave the ivory keys of the piano a terrific jolt. He looked at them wide-eyed, then turned to his friend Dooley, and said in tones of soft admiration, "It's true that I never saw McGrath in real life, but I must say he had a wonderful set of teeth!"

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By THERON NEWELL

Novato Folk Dual Personalities, Both Big-City And Rural

NOVATO has always been known as the horsy town of Marin County. One cannot argue with such a name, because in many respects it is rightfully earned.

Many families have moved to Novato just because of horses. There is still room around here for people to keep their horses and live in a suburban area. There are those that do not realize it, but some parents think that it is good for kids to grow up knowing the companionship of horses and dogs.

After all, without these two animals, civilization would never have come into being.

THOSE WHO do not understand this give a little scorn to the town in the tone of voice they use when they refer to Novato as "horsy." They may have even been on the main business street, Grant Avenue, and seen horses moving through traffic without attracting more than a passing glance.

These same people probably do not realize that horsiness and culture can be mixed. This mixture started many years ago when horses became a symbol of leisure and not of work. It reaches its most noteworthy climax in Madison Square Garden when the diamonds of society mix with the leather of saddles.

WELL, WITH ALL the cultural activities going on in the area in the next six weeks, Edmund Mahany, director of parks and recreation, has promoted the idea of calling it Novato's Fall Cultural Festival.

First of these activities came last Sunday when amateurs and semi-professional talent from the Bay Area put on a "talent showcase" at the Community House. The aim of this affair was to raise money for two scholarships in drama and music, to be presented at Novato High School. The show was sponsored by the Novato Garden Club.

Next Sunday the Novato Art Guild will hold its "annual art harvest show" in the Community House. Here oil paintings, water colors and craft work will be displayed and judged.

UNITED NATIONS DAY will be observed in Novato on Oct. 24, with Robert Carrow heading that event. No definite announcement of the program has been made yet.

Then on the two following weekends the Novato Community Club will present its "Fractured Fling." The three acts of this fling are take-offs on "The World Of Politics," "Suburbia," and "The World Of Entertainment."

The final event comes when the Don Cossack Chorus and dancers will give a performance at the Novato High School gymnasium for the benefit of foreign exchange student program. Sponsors are the Community Ambassadors, local American Field Service group.

This double personality of the area is evidenced in many ways. There are many people in the town who spend their working hours in the towers of San Francisco carrying on the world's business.

Then, when quitting time comes, they head for this suburban area where they can mow their lawns, tend their flower or vegetable gardens, or take care of the livestock on their acreages.

This was well illustrated one time during a city council meeting when Robert Lagle, city planner, was asked who owned a certain piece of property on Vineyard Terrace. His answer was:

"I can't remember his name, but he is part of a corporation and raises sheep."

Farm Research Is Slighted

Agricultural research is getting short shrift in comparison to other industry in the opinion of a University of California researcher.

The view comes from R. Merton Love, chairman of U-C's department of agronomy.

Love said about one and one-half cents per dollar of agricultural income in California is spent on research in the field — a minimal sum compared to the four to seven cents per dollar of income spent on research by the automobile industry.

Love added agricultural research is being underfinanced by society. Of the estimated 47-million-dollars spent yearly on agricultural study in California, about half comes from private funds. One problem, he said, has been in getting funds for specific problems in the field, when the money must come out of funds for basic research and teaching.

Postman Mixes Clausen With Santa; It Figures!

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — You can make of this what you choose, but the first Santa Claus letter to come to my attention this year struck me as being symbolic of the times.

It was written by young James Daubney of Uxbridge, Mass., and Jimmie apparently does not believe all that jazz about Santa living at the North Pole.

At any rate, he mailed his letter to Washington, D. C. which figures.

EVEN THE KIDS must know by now that when you want something, Washington is the place to write.

Furthermore, the letter was delivered to a congressman. Which also figures.

Old St. Nick may be noted for his benevolence, but he never came up with anything that could touch the recent military pay bill passed by Congress. And when did Santa ever leave a tax cut in anyone's stocking?

In this case, however, the routing of the letter was not so much of a Freudian slip as a matter of postal myopia.

THE LETTER was addressed to "Santa Claus," and the post office, with typical efficiency, delivered it to the office of Rep. Don H. Clausen, (R-Calif.)

A mistake like that would not have happened if Jimmie had used Santa's Zip code number.

There is no doubt, however, that Jimmie did the right thing in sending the letter to Washington. It would take a congressional appropriation to pay for all of the things he wants for Christmas.

IF THE ITEMS on his list were stacked end to end, we wouldn't need the Apollo Space Program to reach the moon.

As an indication of what the rest of us parents will be up against this year, Jimmie's early bird gift list is itemized below. I have used his spelling, mainly because I can't spell very well either.

First page — "Smoke gun, cement mixer, boat trailer truck, truck dump, horse trailer, truck & trailer, fire engine, buldozer, Indian set, cow set, airoplanes, popie sailer punching bag, pup tent, train set."

Second page—"New clock, U. S. space team, sky diver, cargo plane, Mr. Machine, Mr. Mercury, robut comando, King Zor, farm set, blue & gray army set, combat set, big bruesir, exploding tank."

Third page — "Gas station, car, truck, car, sub, plaine, racing car set."

This makes me glad that some of my sons are girls.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

An Inspired Defense Promotes Trumps In Today's Bridge Hand

A bid in an opponent's suit is usually a force to game. In one typical situation it tells your partner not to pass until you have had time to describe your hand.

In today's hand, for example, North wants to show his diamonds and hear about South's distribution before choosing a game contract.

Opening lead — ♣ 4

The outcome of the delicate auction was a very reasonable game contract. South would probably make four spades every day of the week and twice on Sunday, except against inspired defense.

EAST WINS

East wins the first trick with the king of clubs and continues with the ace.

West plays the nine of clubs at the second trick, thus making it clear that he started with three clubs to the queen.

There doesn't seem to be any further nourishment in clubs, but East can see very little hope in any other suit.

ONLY CHANCE

South surely has the ace of hearts and the king of spades for his bidding, and even if he lacks the king of diamonds he will be able to take a finesse to avoid the loss of a diamond trick.

The only chance is to promote a trump trick for West. For this purpose West has to be given a chance to over-ruff South.

East leads a third club, and South shrewdly ruffs in his own hand. It would be fatal to waste one of dummy's trump honors.

LEADS TRUMP

South leads a trump, and East must refuse the first trump trick.

East takes the next trump and leads a fourth round of clubs.

Now South cannot shut out the ten of spades.

If South ruffs low, West over-ruffs; and if South ruffs with the king, West's ten of spades becomes the master trump.

Anti-Unity Committee In Action

The Citizen's Committee Against Unification of the Tamalpais High School District as a Whole has issued a policy statement on the eve of public hearings to be held throughout the district by the augmented committee on school district organization.

Beginning Oct. 23, 11 public hearings will be held throughout the district. At each meeting, according to chairman John E. Cahill of the citizen's committee, there will be a district chairman present to oppose the plan.

The committee opposes the unification plan which would take all elementary schools and lump them into one district because of loss of community and student identity, loss of local control and loss of communication between teacher, school official, and parent.

District chairmen are: Richard J. Cruikshank and Elaine Kozak, Sausalito; Erwin Farley and L. S. Peirano Jr., Reed; Mrs. James Eggers and Milton Bromberg, Kentfield; Mary Grandin and Frank Barsocchini, Ross; Harold Stockstead and Dr. Horton C. Hinshaw, Mill Valley; Roy Donike and Cedrik Clute, San Anselmo; Jack Cimono, Fairfax, and Leo Jarvis and W. G. Woodward, Larkspur.

Two Meetings For Sausalito

Sausalito city councilmen will meet two nights in a row this week.

They will hold a regular meeting at 8 p.m. today at which among many other items, they are to discuss a rate increase request by Sausalito Taxi, George Lant Street dedication, and authorization of a court reporter for the Board of Review.

Tomorrow the council will meet at 7:45 p.m. to extend the interim use permit ordinance.

This is the only item on the agenda.

Waters Flunks His QB Test; It Looks Like McHan Has The Job

RANDOL

Along with several sad-eyed sadists I watched the San Francisco 49ers do it again Sunday. The scene of action was changed but the script was the same, and the final familiar score was Baltimore Colts 20, 49ers 3.

Pity the poor columnist. After all, just how many ways are left to say that the Niners stank up the joint?

Not that the Colts didn't try to be perfect hosts by giving the Niners every opportunity to end their 11-game losing streak. But the 49er offense wasn't trying, and number 12 was in the record books.

If touchdowns were free filet mignons, the hungry Niners wouldn't even have dirty fingertips. Total scoring in the past two games of the road trip has been two field goals, one in each game.

In Sunday's fiasco, opportunity knocked at the 49er door until his knuckles were bloody. The invalid was too sick to get out of bed. Can rigor mortis be far behind?

LET IT be on record that the 49er defense played its heart out, contained the Colt attack for three quarters, and time after time gave the offense the ball in scoring position.

Patient Jack Christiansen gave quarterback Bobby Waters every opportunuity to prove that he is entitled to a shot at the number one spot for the rest of the season. I have an idea that Lamar McHan will be at the helm from here on in.

WATERS THROWS his passes in a manner that is somehow reminiscent of a jai alai player. His arm sweeps up from a waist hight position and his delivery is not high enough to avoid the hands of rushing defenders. When he does get the ball away it is a bullet, and often off target.

McHan throws a much "softer" pass, and will prove an adequate replacement by the time the season is over and it no longer matters who throws what.

Coach Christiansen has simplified the 49er offense to the kindergarten stage in an attempt to return to fundamentals. There is such a thing as over-doing. Even sheer pride should goad the new headman into trying for enough offense to score at least one touchdown.

THE NINERS return to Kezar next Sunday for a game with the league-leading Chicago Bears. A game? What am I saying? Games are for funsies, and this will be no fun, believe me. Papa Halas and his men are not famous for charity or kindness. Don't take the children; this will be for adults only.

Normally I can go along with the theories of passive resistance and turning the other cheek. But, for heaven's sake, not in pro football!

Some Encouraging News For The 49ers

The San Francisco 49ers, looking for an offensive spark, may get one in about a month.

Halfback Billy Kilmer, a never-give-up performer on and off the field, was to return to the practice field today after a remarkable recovery from an auto accident that almost ended his career—and his life.

Last Dec. 6, Kilmer narrowly escaped death in a Bayshore Freeway accident that left his right leg nearly shattered.

Kilmer refused to give up. He did 40 chin-ups a day in the hospital and exercised the leg whenever possible.

Doctors will take X-rays in a month and it will be decided then if Kilmer can be re-activated for the 49ers' final four games.

Quarterback John Brodie also may be available for these games so the Prospectors could wind up with an offense after all.

Both the running attack and the quarterbacking again broke down Sunday at Baltimore as the Colts moved to a 20-3 win.

Coach Jack Christiansen has little to say about the offense, but was high on the defense against the Colts.

"Those guys certainly gave the offense enough chances to score points, but they (the offense) never capitalized," he said.

Christiansen said that defensive end Clark Miller played his "best game ever" at Baltimore.

Place-kicker Tommy Davis missed three field goals and hit one in still another disappointing 49er performance. But Christiansen said that Davis received a charley horse at Detroit and has not been able to get his leg loosened up since then.

Oklahoma Grid Ace Dismissed

NORMAN, Okl. (AP)—The University of Oklahoma football team became the object of nationwide surprise for the second time in three days Monday when star halfback Joe Don Looney was dropped from the squad for disciplinary reasons.

The first surprise came Saturday, when the Sooners, then rated No. 1, were soundly outplayed by Texas and defeated 28-7.

Coach Bud Wilkinson declined to comment on the incident. He would not say if the loss to Texas had anything to do with the dismissal of the 224-pound speedster from Fort Worth, Texas.

But Looney's father, Don Looney, a star end for Texas Christian in the late 1930s, told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram that Wilkinson telephoned him to say:

"I am sorry it happened. He had lots of ability, but he had some bad practices last week, and we decided that this cost us the ball game."

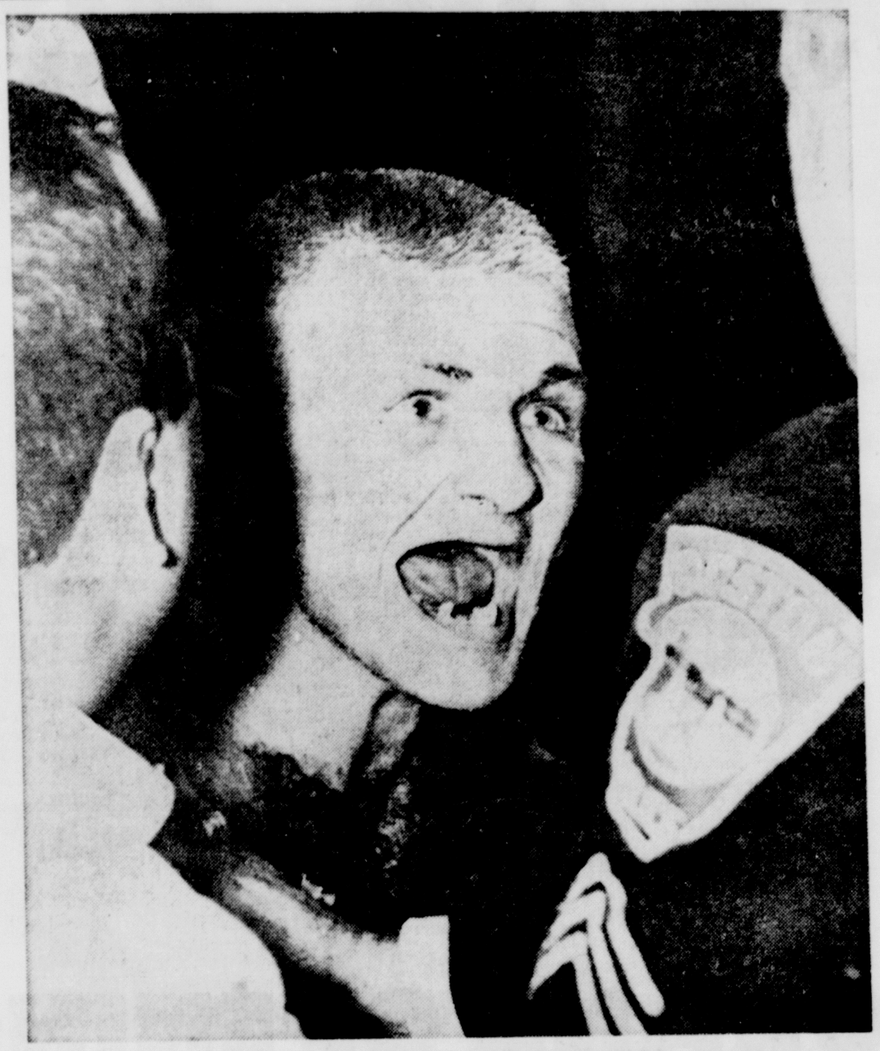
SORE FOOT

Looney's father said his son had a sore foot last week which hampered him in practice.

The elder Looney told the Star-Telegram that Wilkinson said the O.U. senior football players had taken a vote and decided they could do better without his son.

A newsman was told by O.U. end John Flynn, Looney's roommate, that the big senior had moved out of the dormitory and headed for a relative's home in Kansas.

Rumors had persisted for some time that such a move was brewing. Looney reportedly was the object of some displeasure from the coaching staff when he skipped spring training to try out for the track team.



'LOOK, MA, NO CAVITIES'

Well, that's not exactly what heavyweight fighter Tom McNeeley was saying after his fight with Kolu Sabedong, 6-foot-7 Hawaiian in Boston last night. He was just fighting mad. McNeeley was awarded a technical knockout over Sabedong in second round after the referee repeatedly warned the Hawaiian of low blows. After the bout was stopped McNeeley's two brothers, Brian and Kevin, stormed into the ring and all three brothers tried to pummel Sabedong. Polite (right) and handlers jumped into the ring and broke up the small riot. (AP Wirephoto)

AUERBACH INJURY

Redwood Ace Is Out For Season

Redwood High School's ace halfback Dave Auerbach will be sidelined for the remainder of the season with a knee injury suffered in last Saturday's Marin Athletic League game with Drake High, it was disclosed this morning by Coach Bob Troppmann.

Auerbach, a flashy senior runner and the Giants' leading rusher and scorer this season, suffered torn ligaments in his right knee during the third quarter of Saturday's game, won by Drake, 18-6. The leg was placed in a cast yesterday as the Giants learned Auerbach would be unable to play again this season.

The Redwood coaching staff studied game films this morning and saw that Auerbach ". . . was hit hard by several Drake players on a line plunge, when he was hurt," according to assistant coach Al Endriss.

Just prior to the injury Auerbach electrified the crowd of 3,000 with a dazzling 77-yard touchdown run that gave the defending champion Giants a 6-0 lead. However, the Pirates rallied for the 18-6 victory, their fifth straight this year and second in league to take the favorites' role in the 1963 title race.

Auerbach was Redwood's leading ground gainer and scorer this season. In five games he gained 371 yards on 65 carries for a 5.7 average and scored 41 points on six touchdowns and five conversions.

Troppman said wing back Dave Cox will be moved to Auerbach's left half spot and Buzz Bricca will start at wing.

The Giants are idle this week while the six other MAL teams are scheduled for Saturday action—San Rafael vs. Tam at Kentfield and Terra Linda at Novato, both at 2 p.m., and Drake vs. Marin Catholic at Kentfield, 8 p.m.

College of Marin's Tars open Golden Valley Conference play Friday night, 8 o'clock, at Kentfield, against Sierra College. The Tars have a three-game winning streak going for them.

EVEN 49ERS CAN BE TOUGH, HALAS FEARS

SONOMA (UPI) — Coach George Halas put his Chicago Bears on the regimen of workouts and hot mineral baths today to get them ready for the "tough" San Francisco 49ers.

Taking the waters at nearby Boyes Hot Springs has become something of a tradition for the Bears for the weeks in between games at Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Despite the 52-14 defeat of the Rams Sunday, Halas had a worried look as he contemplated next Sunday's tussle at San Francisco.

"We're playing over our heads," he said. "Every game becomes a tougher one when you're on a win streak. Even the 49ers could be tougher than you expect."

The 49ers now have lost five straight games this season, counting Sunday's 20-3 loss to Baltimore. This makes a string of 12 consecutive losses, counting exhibitions and the end of last season.

The Bears, on the other hand, have won all five games this season, and 10 of their past 11 league games.

Seals Need Improvement, Says Poile

The San Francisco Seals head southward to battle the Los Angeles Blades tonight in the spacious Sports Arena.

The Seals have a 1-1 record so far. Come to think of it, so does every other team in the league.

San Francisco dropped its home opener to the Blades 3-2 before 10,227 fans but then took a 3-1 decision at Portland Sunday.

Coach Bud Poile was high on the play of goalie Bob Perreault, newcomer Charlie Burns and brothers Eddie and Pete Panagabko.

"We're still trying to improve our lines," the coach said. "I'm moving Duke Edmundson around and trying Len Haley together with Nick Mickoski and Cliff Pennington. We've got a lot of work to do and some of the guys are still not in shape."

The Seals have hired Art Santo Domingo, also Giants statistician, to work home games and keep figures on shots on goal; face offs won and lost; goal misses and the lines on ice when goals for and against are scored.

Fairfax Loses S. F. Loop Game

Although outhitting their opponents 18-11, errors and walks proved too costly as DeMaestri's Fairfax Garage baseballers dropped a 16-8 decision to Vaughan Liquors nine of San Francisco to open the "AAA" Continental Winter League of S. F.

The game was played Sunday at San Anselmo's Memorial Park. Leading hitters for the Fairfax team were Mike Telegrin with a home run, John Odetto with a triple and single, Lon Gallagher with three hits, and Ron Sater and Larry Geraghty each with a pair of safeties.

Bob Lemon Named Islander Manager

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Bob Lemon, former Cleveland Indian pitching star, is the new manager of the Pacific Coast League Hawaiian Islander baseball team.

Irv Noren, whom Lemon replaces as manager of the Los Angeles Angels' farm team, said yesterday the move came as a complete surprise to him.

"I don't know if I'll stay in baseball, I'll just have to wait and see what offers I get," he said.

Golf Great Horton Smith Dies At 55

DETROIT (AP)—Horton Smith, a member of the Professional Golf Assn.'s Hall of Fame and a participant in every Masters Tournament, lost a remarkable six-year battle to illness today.

The 55-year-old winner of the first Masters died of Hodgkins disease at 12:05 a.m. He collapsed yesterday in his car en route to see his physician.

Smith had just returned from attending the English-American Ryder Cup matches at Atlanta, where he collapsed on the first tee Sunday, but came back to see the finish of play in a motorized cart.

Smith was a member of seven U.S. Ryder Cup teams, and never lost a match against the British. He won the first Masters in 1934, repeated in 1936, and played in all of them although he had to go part way in 1963 in a cart.

Builders Back On Winning Trail In Alameda League

The Billings-Hutchison Builders semi-pro baseball team of Marin was back on the winning trail today after whipping the Longshoremen team, 6-1, in Alameda League action Sunday.

Led by the 12 strikeout pitching of their ace southpaw, Bob DeRosa, the Builders jumped into second place, trailing Milen's Jewelers by one and one-half games. In addition to his pitching, DeRosa got three of his team's 12 hits.

Bill Heinz added a triple and two singles and Dan Fitizgerald had a pair of safeties to help the winning cause.

AT CAL, STANFORD, SAN JOSE

New Names Head Roster Of North Cal College Heroes

Names you never heard of at the start of the 1963 football season are cropping up now as vital cogs in collegiate football machines.

It will be true this Saturday as Stanford travels to meet Washington at Seattle and California plays host to San Jose State at Berkeley.

Mike Connelly, Dick Berg and Don Cook were just three names that cropped up early in the Stanford alphabetical roster until Clark Weaver suffered a knee injury that put him out for the season. Now the three sophomores are carrying the quarterback load.

Jack Schraub rated well down the list of ends at California until he started hanging onto passes a couple weeks ago and then caught two for touchdowns against Duke.

You might want to spell Bob Paterson's name with the double T but you probably didn't write it at all until last Saturday's 13-8 upset of Washington State.

Those were some of the names mentioned prominently at yesterday's meeting of the Northern California Football Writers and Sportscasters Assn.

VOTED TOPS

In fact, Schraub was voted lineman-of-the-week by the group and Paterson, a defensive specialist and punter, was voted the outstanding back.

"We're going to stay with the sophomores," Coach John Ralston declared in discussing his quarterback situation after losing 23-13 to Rice.

Connelly and Berk did most of the work against Rice but Cook can be expected to see more action against Washington since he's the best thrower of the trio and Ralston expects more passing against the Huskies.

Also Washington can look for the halfback pass in this Big Six contest. Steve Thurlow played quarterback the past two years and can throw. But even with Weaver out, Thurlow will stay at left half.

Coach Marv Levy doesn't plan to start Schraub, a 6-foot-5 Campbell, Calif., high school teammate of regular quarterback Craig Morton. But he figures the lanky fellow will be playing about 50 per cent of the time. Against Duke he caught two touchdown passes and an 18-yard reception set up a third.

Another such performance undoubtedly would boost him onto the first unit, but Levy says he wants to be sure before making changes. He did elevate flanker back Jerry Mosher onto the first unit.

San Jose State coach Bob Titchenal said defense rather than offense brought the victory over Washington State and Paterson was the top defensive back in the game.

Additionally, he boomed a 63-yard punt late in the game that put Washington State into a hole from which the Cougars never recovered.

Texas Now Top Team In Football Ratings

The Texas Longhorns took over the No. 1 spot today in both the Associated Press and United Press International polls of the nation's college football teams following their convincing 28-7 victory over Oklahoma Saturday. The Sooners had been rated the No. 1 team in the country going into the game; Texas No. 2.

The top 10 rankings underwent a wholesale shuffling resulting from last weekend's stunning wave of upsets. Other surprises saw Alabama upset by Florida, 10-6; Southern Methodist bump Navy, 32-28; Southern California beaten by Notre Dame, 17-14; and Penn State downed by Army, 10-7. Ohio State was tied by Illinois, 20-20.

Southern California, the defending national champion, dropped clear out of the top 10 in both polls.

The top 10:

A.P.—1. Texas, 2. Wisconsin, 3. Pittsburgh, 4. Ohio State, 5. Mississippi, 6. Oklahoma, 7. Illinois, 8. Georgia Tech, 9. Alabama, 10. Tie Navy and Northwestern.

UPI—1. Texas, 2. Wisconsin, 3. Pittsburgh, 4. Ohio State, 5. Oklahoma, 6. Georgia Tech, 7. Mississippi, 8. Tie Alabama and Illinois, 10. Northwestern.

Cubs' Ellsworth Wins Comeback Of Year Honors

CHICAGO (AP) — Young Dick Ellsworth, voted the National League's comeback baseball player-of-the-year in the annual Associated Press Poll, is happy to get the award but never wants to win it again.

"No thanks," said Ellsworth who compiled a 22-10 record with the Chicago Clubs in 1963 after a horrible 9-20 mark in 1962. "If you have to lose 20 games one year and then come back and win 20 the next, I don't want it anymore."

The 23-year-old left-hander credits the development of a slider for his season, which included a 2.10 earned run average with 75 walks and 185 strikeouts in 290 2-3 innings.

Pallavicini Leads Hub Merchants To S.F. League Win

Vince Pallavicini pitched a two-hitter and aided his own cause with a double and single Sunday to lead manager Pete Maggi's San Anselmo Merchants to a 7-0 victory over the Boer Indians in the opening game of the San Francisco Triple-A Winter Baseball League.

The game, played at Balboa Park, saw Pallavicini, former professional in the Detroit Tigers farm system, strike out nine batters while walking only two.

Good Waterfowl Season Forecast

The general waterfowl season for ducks, geese, coots and gallinules will open throughout most of California on Wednesday, Oct. 23, 1963, and run through Jan. 5, 1964.

This includes all of the state except for the northeastern area and the Colorado River area, both of which opened Oct. 8.

On the opening day, shooting starts at 1 p.m. Pacific Daylight Saving Time. Throughout the rest of the season shooting hours run from one half hour before sunrise to sunset.

In the general season area, bag limit on ducks is six per day and in possession. This bag limit may include two wood ducks and one hooded merganser. There is no open season on canvasbacks and redheads.

The bag limit on geese in the general season area is six geese in bag or possession of which not more than three can be of the dark species. One Ross's goose may be included in the daily bag and possession limit.

The Department of Fish and Game reported this week that as the fall season progresses, the waterfowl populations are continuing to increase, and a recent survey on the Tule Lake — Lower Klamath refuge indicates that population are running ahead of last year.

Increased populations this year are undoubtedly reflecting better production than was reported this year on the waterfowl nesting grounds.

DEER AND ANTELOPE

Thomas Render of San Anselmo shows off the deer and the antelope he and two hunting companions bagged on a recent trip to Rock Springs, Wyo. Render along with Harry Foot, also of San Anselmo, and John Moreno of San Francisco came back with three antelope and three deer. The antelope weighed in the 90-100-pound bracket while the deer weighed 240, 120 and 100 pounds.

Predator-Sized Trout Removed From Lake Merced By F-G Dept.

STEVENS

I guess it's a matter of semantics, but it's got this writer confused. In the latest release from the Department of Fish and Game is the following: "The treatment will be applied to rid the lake of predator-sized trout and control rough fish prior to restocking with fingerling rainbows that will grow to catchable size by opening day next spring."

Just what is a predator-sized trout? How do they differ from other trout? It's confusing. Does it mean that these undesirable rainbows are getting too big for such a body of water as South Lake Merced? Could be, I suppose. But it seems a shame that such trophy-sized trout are being removed in favor of a flock of babies. However, it is a known fact that the same sort of treatment was carried on in North Lake Merced and the lake restocked. Results were apparently gratifying. According to the F&G, "Some of the best trout fishing ever was enjoyed on that lake."

THE SAN LORENZO River, in Santa Cruz County, has just been stocked with 1,400 young steelhead weighing one-quarter of a pound each. But, you can't try for them until at least Dec. 1. Should make for some good fishing if the young fellows manage to make it to the open sea and come back later.

TAKING A quick check on happenings fishwise in the local areas, it's hard to wax overly enthusiastic. Salmon trolling remains spotty, according to Caruso's, which admitted that practically all boats berthed at Caruso's in Sausalito went to sea, but the take in salmon was disgustingly low. Ditto for the boats that tried the inshore spots for bass and halibut. Bass fishing inside the G.G. Bridge was perhaps fair—boats averaged a bit better than two bass per rod, but the salmon searchers reported hardly better than two or three to the boat.

JOE NERVIANI, of Joe's Launching at Santa Venetia reported 30 bass unloaded on Saturday from the Marin side of the Buoy 5 area. Fish ran to 12 pounds. Not bad but not too hot. Could be that by the time you read this, results will be much better. Nerviani told me that Jim Hamil and friend fished that area on Saturday—caught five bass from 3 to 12 pounds and ran out of bait.

LOWELL BIACCI of Dowrelio's reported "Fishing slow," Lee Anderson's in Oakland reported seven bass for the R.S.P., 10 for the Cherokee, and 10 for the Millie Linn—all below the usual.

JOHN GRANT of San Leandro Marina reported the South Bay "spotty" — lots of fish seen, but they weren't hitting. On Saturday Rod Clement landed a 21-pound sunfish—first time I've heard of a sunfish in such waters.

A STURGEON weighing 112 pounds and one of 40 pounds were landed off Port Costa.

Acquisition Of 'Pool' Recommended

The conservation committee of the Marin Rod and Gun Club recommended that the club sponsor a resoluation urging public acquisition of the White House Pool area on Lagunitas Creek.

According to the recommendation, the area should be preserved and developed for public use and enjoyment. The recommendation was submitted to the board of directors. The area is one of the outstanding fising spots in Marin County.

The action came at the last meeting of the conservation committee which was held in the group's clubhouse at Point San Quentin on Sept. 25. Judge Leonard Thomas, committee chairman, presided.

Chairman Thomas, in another move, projected the need for splash boards at Kent Lake to reserve enough water to permit a better year 'round flow in Papermill Creek. It was decided to investigate the various factors involved before recommending formal action.

Also included in the committee's discussions was the matter of availability of federal matching funds in county or state acquisition of lands for public recreational purposes. It was decided that a determination should be made as to how these grants, if available, might be used in Marin County.

It was also recommended that "active and vigorous" support be given to the Save-the-Bay Committee by the Marin Rod and Gun Club and other conservtion and sportsmen's groups. The club is considering the possibility of hosting various organizations for round table discussions as to a plan of action.

Several Benefits In Clubs' Merger

Innumerable benefits have resulted from the merger of the California Wildlife Federation (CWF) and the Sportsmen's Council of Northern California (SCNC), according to Steve Lato, publicist for the Marin Rod and Gun Club.

Chief advantages, said Lato, are:

1. Added strength by virtue of the increased numbers.

2. Presenting a common and united front to achieve goals of benefit to sportsmen and to the conservation of natural resources of California.

3. Learning from each other the problems and occurrences in all reaches of the state.

Prior to the annual meeting of the California Wildlife Federation which was hosted by the Marin Rod and Gun Club June 30 and July 1, there were two groups.

Generally speaking, SCNC consisted of clubs located in the northern section of the state, while SWF comprised groups in Sacramento, the Bay Area and southward. The Marin Rod and Gun Club belonged to both groups and was able to play a key role in the merger of the two organizations.

More Small Boat Cruises Planned By Marin Group

The Marin Rod and Gun Club will probably plan more small boat cruises after the reported success of its first one which was held on Sept. 15.

Six boats participated in the first cruise which was to Ko-Ket on the Sacramento River. Those in the party included Mr. and Mrs. Ken Watts, Bob and Eleanor Freeman, Mr. and Mrs. Don Luzzi, Mr. and Mrs. Marty Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Milburn Zell and Mr. and Mrs. David Young and family.

Including guests, about 24 persons participated.

Ken Watts led off with his craft, setting a northerly course on the Sacramento River past Walnut Grove, through Cross Delta Canal to the Mokelumne River, then through the jungle-like waterways to Snodgrass Slough (often called the Meadows or Everglades of California).

The fleet then swung about and cruised down the North Fork of the Mokelumne to the B and W Resort where it refueled. Then it was off again to Korth's Pirate Lair Marina where the group held a barbecue.

The Marin group took a different route for the trip back, turning off the Mokelumne into the Georgiana Slough. After enjoying the scenic waterway, the group turned again into the Sacramento River and started on its trip back to Marin.

Check On Illegal Deer In Northeast

Checks in two areas of Northeastern California's three-point deer area by Department of Fish and Game personnel turned up only one illegal deer carcass, the DFG reported this week.

The intensive checks covered one square mile of land in both the Cottonwood Mountains area of Lassen County and the Dismal Swamp area of Modoc County, and they involved the equivalent of 19 man days of work.

New Sonoma Angling Access Facilities Open Saturday

The Hudeman Slough angling access facilities in Sonoma County have been completed and will be formally turned over to the county for operation and maintenance at a dedication to be held Saturday at 2 p.m. at the site, the California Wildlife Conservation Board announced this week.

The facilities are located adjacent to the road leading from Highway 37 to the Skaggs Island Naval Station.

The facilities include parking area, loading floats, sanitary facilities, and boat ramps. The development will provide angler and hunter access to Sna Pablo Bay and the many miles of sloughs and tidal channels in the area.

The WCB, which operates on an annual appropriation of $750,000 from the state's share of race track pari-mutuel funds, allocated the $41,000 for construction of the development. Under the board's statewide program of providing hunter and angler access to the state's public lands and waters, maintenance and operation of the developments is assumed by local governments.

The WCB is composed of the President of the Fish and Game Commission, the Director of the Department of Fish and Game, the Director of the Department of Finance, and a six member legislative advisory committee. Ray Nesbit serves as Executive Officer.

Representing the board at the dedication will be DFG Director Walter T. Shannon, Assemblyman Frank Belotti, a member of the Legislative advisory committee, and Nesbit. Willard Greenwald, Manager of the central coast counties for the DFG, also will attend.

Bear Take Ahead Of Last Year's

California hunters bagged 129 bears through Sept. 30, compared to 101 by the end of September a year ago, according to bear tags returned to the Department of Fish and Game.

The leading counties were Plumas and Shasta, with 18 each, followed by Siskiyou, 14, and Trinity, 13. Last year Humboldt led in September, with 16, followed by Shasta, 12, and Trinity, 10. Five bears have been taken in Humboldt through September of this year.

To hunt bear, nimrods must have a valid 1963 California hunting license and bear tags. The bear season runs through January 1, 1964, with a limit of two per season.

SACRAMENTO GIRL

Teen Tahoe Swimmer To Attempt English Channel

SACRAMENTO (AP)—A teenage Sacramento girl, the youngest person to swim the chilly 25-mile length of Lake Tahoe, has set her sights on the English Channel and she's confident she'll swim it next year.

Lenore Modell, 13-year-old eighth grader, swam the cold, Sierra Mountain lake in 14 hours, 34 minutes last week despite winds strong enough to whip up whitecaps.

Her coach, Paul Herron of the Sacramento YMCA, said her time is a Tahoe record. Few have swum the length of the lake, and the best previous time Herron remembers was "about 17 hours" by a man.

Lenore will be 14 next August when Herron plans to take her to France to practice for hef channel attempt early in September.

He says she'll be the youngest person ever to attempt a channel swim.

Herron, a former Stanford University swimmer who has crossed the channel three times, said Leonore is an example of his fitness theories of "developing young organisms."

"Some people say you can't stress a young body too soon or you'll injure it," he said. But he thinks young bodies "if stressed progressively and at the proper rate," will be able to perform superb feats as easily as most people "go out for a walk."

Leonore said she doesn't pay much attention to Herron's theories. "I just swim," she added.

Families To Dine At Clubhouse

The Marin Rod and Gun Club will hold its next monthly dinner Saturday evening in the clubhouse at Point San Quentin for members, their families and guests. An excellent meal, topped off by music and entertainment, will be the order of the evening.

"The dinner will be served promptly from 7 to 7:20 p.m. and no later," says chairman Ray Augusto. He cautions that those attending should make every effort to arrive on time or they may be obliged to miss part of the meal. A social hour will start at 6 p.m.

Tickets for the dinner are priced at $2 for adults and $1 for children 12 and under. They may be obtained from club secretary Paul Ware or the bait shops in San Rafael. No tickets will be sold to the door.

"Since the facilities are quite limited," said Augusto, "members who have not yet purchased their tickets should do so immediately."

Ohio Highway Patrol Keeps Tabs On Major U.S. Crime

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—One of these days, someone may commit a major crime in the United States that the Ohio State Highway Patrol doesn't know about.

But don't count on it.

Because from its headquarters here, the Patrol acts as a clearing house for virtually all messages sent to and from all of the major law enforcement agencies in the country.

It's probably the least known phase of the Patrol's work, and yet it among the most important. Patrol officials say that if some technical problem should knock the message communications center here out of commission, police departments throughout the United States would be virtually isolated from each other.

The OSP communications setup is a complicated, interlaced mass of teletype, telegraph and radio equipment that connects all points in Ohio, and also links up the East Coast with the rest of the nation.

Most people are aware that law enforcement agencies within the state are equipped to communicate with each other. That is handled by radio and teletype through the General Headquarters here.

The fgiures on intrastate messages are staggering. In 1962, for example, the Patrol sent and received 2,415,000 messages by radio. Teletype messages that year accounted for 707,977 more.

The third method of communications, telegraph, is the link that makes the Patrol's headquarters here the most important communications link in the nation's law enforcement system.

Basically, it works like this:

Seventeen states of the East Coast are tied in on the Eastern States Teletype Network, which has its western terminus here. That leaves 33 states without means of communicating with the East. And that is where the message center here comes in.

Say, for example, New York police are hunting a bank robber, and have reason to believe he may be headed for Los Angeles. They will teletype a message to Columbus, and the Ohio Patrol will relay that message via telegraph to Los Angeles authorities. Without the link here, the only means of communications would be telephone, which is too costly, and the U.S. Mail, which is far to slow for this type of work.

The system also works the other way around. Patrol operators receive telegraph messages from western and southern points and relay them by teletype to the East Coast.

In 1962, 55,551 such messages were relayed through Columbus. That comes to over 1,000 messages moving across the country through the Patrol's offices every week.

Within Ohio, the OSP's communications network is so extensive that it requires a staff of 79 trained operators and technicians to keep it running. The Patrol maintains a separate department to supervise planning, installation and repair of radio installations.

The headquarters post here has direct radio and teletype connections with the Patrol's 11 district headquarters, and with the larger city and county law enforcement agencies in the state. The district posts, in turn, can contact by radio any of the Patrol posts within their jurisdiction.

In addition, the Patrol handles messages to and from various state departments, the Ohio Bureau of Criminal Investigation, the FBI and others. With all of those departments included, the total message load in 1962 came to 3,178,418.

To handle teletype messages, the Patrol leases sending and receiving equipment from Western Union. Messages come in from the East on perforated tape, and are forwarded to the telegraph room immediately for transmission west.

To send a message, operators put the message on a tape, feed it through a machine, push a button to get it on its way, then sit back and watch. From there on, it's all automatic.

Radio communications are handled in a radio center, which is tied in vocally with law enforcement agencies throughout the state. Seven different frequencies are channeled into the center at all times.

Once a message has been received, it is copied and filed into a system that provides quick access to hundreds of types of information.

Patent Office System Undergoing Changes

WASHINGTON (UPI)—If U. S. Patent Commissioner David L. Ladd were the melodramatic type you could probably find him looking through his office window crying out plaintively:

"Technology, technology everywhere—but not a drop for me."

The 36-year-old commissioner is presiding over a governmental activity whose problems must present one of the classic ironies of our time.

The nation is in the midst of an unprecedented burst of inventiveness and technological progress that is helping everyone—and slowly crushing the Patent Office to death under a mountainous workload.

Ladd, who is far from the wailing type, is making a spirited effort to reorganize his office. The outcome could determine whether the present system will survive.

His new approach includes trying to adapt some of the new technology to speeding up the processing of patents. But so far, this phase of the reorganization has had only limited success.

Ladd, a former Chicago patent lawyer, stresses that the job of saving the present system won't be easy.

"The situation is not desperate," he said in an interview. "But on the other hand, the Patent Office has been chronically behind for a long time. I think the time has come when we will have to make a decision."

Ladd said that if the present reorganization does not improve the situation by the middle of next year, "there should be a comprehensive revision of the patent laws."

The root of the problem is the growing increase in patent applications, which reached 80,229 in 1962. This was 16,000 more than the office received 10 years ago.

The crush is so great that it now takes about 3½ years from the time the application is submitted until final action is taken. The backlog at present is running about 197,000.

This "information explosion"—as Ladd terms it—is one of the products of an age of frantic technological activity, spurred by defense requirements and an unquenchable thirst for a higher standard of living.

Inventive fashions are changing, too.

Once the inventor was symbolized by the chap who puttered around in the garage or the basement.

That no longer is true.

Technology now is mass produced in sleek new plants where large teams of white-coated scientists work at the job every day of the week.

The growing stack of patents that must be checked when a new application comes in is increasing to the point where 3,000 additional square feet will be needed every year to house them.

This time - consuming activity is aggravated by a lack of trained personnel. Private industry is continually hiring away patent examiners.

Ladd's reorganization includes reclassification of the 10 million patents on file into fewer categories to speed up the examining process. The patents also are being filed with more logical emphasis on their subject matter.

For instance, some of the previous groupings contained such dissimilar subjects as: threshing, knotters, harvesters, animal husbandry, bee culture and acoustics.

Now the stacks of patents are filed under such headings as: "General Chemistry," "Petroleum Chemistry," and "Coatings and Laminating."

The commissioner also is attacking the personnel problem by trying to improve working conditions. Examiners' salaries have been raised. Promotions now are governed by competency instead of seniority.

A new 22-week training program for examiners is aimed at taking a first-year man and raising him to the competency of an examiner with three years experience.

In addition, the commissioner has set up a research and development section to try to find ways of adapting automated techniques to the laborious process of searching patents.

So far, there is no significant break-through. It seems that science's fancy new computers are capable of doing just about anything except checking out patents.

Wage Hikes In U.S.

Care, Cleaning Of Art Taught

CAPETOWN, South Africa (AP) — A training center where apprentice art restorers can be trained to a national and international standard is planned by the South African Museum Assn.

Paintings in the dry South African climate have to be constantly checked because of the possibility of cracking and peeling.

According to the museum association, the staff shortage in South Africa's 11 national museums means that thousands of valuable works in galleries and private collections are not getting care they deserve or are being ruined by inexpert restoration.

2 African Countries Plan 'Peace Corps'

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP)—Nigeria and Guinea have agreed to exchange teachers in a sort of bilateral peace corps between the two West African countries.

Salifou Taure, permanent secretary to the president of Guinea, said during a visit here that teachers and advanced students would come to Nigeria during school vacations to assist in rural development projects. Nigeria would reciprocate "in the spirit of Addis Ababa," he said.

Progress Continues To Cut Child Deaths

NEW YORK (UPI) — Progress continues to be made in reducing the mortality among children one to 14 years of age, report statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

The reduction in mortality at each of the childhood ages is due primarily to decreases in the death rate from infectious diseases and accidents, the experts said.

Magnetic Recording Tape Adds To Lawmen's Arsenal

NEW YORK (UPI)—Magnetic recording tape is becoming an important part of the law enforcement arsenal.

This thin little electronic device, a quarter-inch to two inches wide, is used in New York state to record automobile license data, in Indiana by the State Police to record explanations of traffic accidents or violations, and by Harvard University to reduce youth crime by letting juvenile delinquents air their grievances into a tape recorder.

And recently the sound of $20,000 in crisp new bills was heard over a tape recorder during a bribery and conspiracy trial in New York state. Detectives had hooked a recorder into a television set in a New York city hotel room. The high-point of the recording was the alleged counting of $100 bills atop the television set as the money audibly scratched from inches away into the sensitive microphone.

Indiana State Police, in cooperation with the 3M Company, tape manufacutrers, produce a weekly radio show, "Signal 10," based on a 25-minute collections of interviews by state policemen with drivers involved in traffic accidents or stopped for traffic violations.

Conversations are taped without the motorist's knowledge on a tiny hidden tape recorder. Names, places and other information that might identify the driver are deleted.

The five-year-old radio series is a three-time winner of the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation award for "imaginatively attacking the problems of traffic law enforcement." Proof of its effectiveness is found in State Police files: a salesman wrote he has stopped "floating" through stop signs after hearing what happened to an accident victim who did. A Columbus, Ohio, father reported the program had caused him to enroll his teen-aged daughter in a driver's school.

In a four-year program called "Streetcorner Research," Harvard University researchers persuaded 30 tough juvenile delinguents to talk about themselves into a tape recorder in return for payment ranging from 30 cents to $2.00 an hour. For almost a year they detailed their problems into a tape recorder. Then some went into the armed forces, others to school and new jobs and a few to prison.

A follow-up study showed the delinquency rate of the group after quitting the project had been half of what might have been expected. The researchers found that, by talking about themselves, the boys began to think about themselves, about what they had done and what the future might be like.

In New York State, magnetic tape enables the Department of Motor Vehicle to check instantly on license information, convictions and accidents of a driver. The Department also plans to transfer to magnetic tape the processing of the States 5,500,000 (m) motor vehicle registrations by 1964.

'Blackmail Game' Is One Of Latest Crazes

ROME (UPI)—The "blackmail game" is the latest craze in Italian society this year, and strangely enough, no one has yet murdered one of his partners.

But many a friendship has been broken.

The often unpleasantly realistic game works like this: Each player can buy a certain number of counters, always smaller than the total number of participants. If there are six players, for instance, each can buy only four chips.

Then they draw lots to decide who is to be the first "blackmail victim" and each of the others writes him a "pay or I'll tell everyone that—" note.

The victim receives the notes one by one and must decide each time if he should buy the right of tearing it up or allow the author to read it aloud. Since he hasn't enough counters to pay all of the blackmailers, and since he doesn't know what the next notes will say, the decision is often an agonizing one.

Of course, the "blackmailers" could choose to be gentlemanlike and say nothing too embarrassing—but if they do they will be short of chips when it is their turn to play the victim.

There is no rule that the blackmailers' statements must be true, but of course the truer the more effective.

When the first victim has received all the messages, lots are drawn for the second and so on. When all have played the victim once, the second round starts in the same order and anyone left short of counters can get new ones—but at double the original price.

Also fashionable is another, somewhat more innocent game called "the auction."

The auctioneer offers; for sale a quality of one of the players (Joe's intelligence, Mary's beauty) or such things as a kiss, a necktie, etc.

Each of the players writes his bid on a piece of paper. The bids are mixed and the auctioneer must guess who made each bid—who could have estimated Jim's singing abilities at five cents, or Bill's jokes at $1,000?

The auction in itself is strictly fictional, but the auctioneer wins a chip whenever he guesses right and loses one if he guesses wrong.

A game based on the same principle is "the murder." Here, one of the players is "murdered" and everyone, including the victim, writes the name of whoever he considers the likely murderer and his motive. The "judge" must guess the author of each theory.

MASKED — A Paris couturier, aware of the hazards of driving in the country in open sports car, designed net headpiece for protection of both eyes and hairdo.

Traditional Turkish Bath Showing Signs Of Regaining Its Popularity

NEW YORK (UPI)—More and more harried executives are enjoying being beaten with suction cups, swatted with oak leaves, sprayed with ice-cold water and roasted in 160-degree heat.

They pay money for it.

Purveyor of these physical "joys is the traditional Turkish bath—on the decline in recent years but showing signs lately of picking up steam with some adroit jet-age innovations.

Many tension - racked businessmen are learning they can shed worries, quiet jangling nerves and get clean as a whistle to boot by enjoying the penetrating ministrations of dry heat, wet heat, pine-scented steam or just plain steam—all mixed with ice-cold showers and dips in a frigid pool.

This "therapy" costs less than $4 at most baths. For a little more, the tired executive can go whole hog and take the oak leaves and suction cup treatment or a plain masage.

Years ago, when inside plumbing was rare, thousands flocked to the Turkish baths

But now the Turkish baths are stressing the health angle—"have your tensions and worries 'relaxed away"—and the customers are knocking at the door once more.

"We now get up to 300 patrons a day," said Fred Epstein, treasurer of New York's Luxor Baths, which bills itself as the biggest in the country.

"They're mostly businessmen who get tied up in knots with their executive problems and want to unwind. "They come in as tense as violin strings. But the baths and treatments make new men of them; they leave as relaxed as facial tissue, their nerves quieted and worries washed away."

The first step is to sample the dry heat room, where the temperature is kept at a minimum 160 degrees. You have to cover the seat with a sheet or towel lest you singe some anatomy. An attendant feeds you ice water and puts ice packs on your head.

Then a dip in the frigid pool. If you can stand that, step—a visit to the sauna or Finnish room, which actually is the old Russian bath treatment cloaked with a more exciting "alias" to attract more people.

The sauna is wet heat, a lot of it, generated by lukewarm water poured over heated slabs and stones. You can make it as hot as you like by climbing a grandstand-type bleacher—the top rung being the hottest.

The oak leaf treatment awaits the courageous few who reach the summit.

At that elevated stage, where the temperature is reported to be at least 180 degrees, it is said that the only touch bearable to the skin is that of soap-coated oak leaves. The special soap prevents burning. Attendants "flog" you with the leaves —and the sensation is invigorating.

The next step — another frigid shower and dip in the pool. Then the pine - scented steam room, which makes you feel like you are lost in a forest of Christmas trees.

Finally, the pounding of an iron - muscled masseur, who knows how to "revitalize" tired nerves.

For the more adventurous, there is the "bankas" treatment, glass suction cups pounded on the skin to stimulate circulation.

The full treatment makes the tired executive feel like a new man and strengthens him for the biggest ordeal ahead—going home to face all those domestic problems.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —An Air Force study shows the typical missile worker at Cape Canaveral is 32 years old, is married, has 1.6 children, is college educated as a technician or engineer and earns about $7,000 a year.

Expense Account Book Sells Well

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UPI) — Sales of a sedate little booklet entitled "Handling Expense Accounts" by one Dudley V. Carrington are reported by its publishers, Osborne - Kemper - Thomas, Inc., to be nearing 150,000 copies.

Claiming to contain "suggestions, tips and predictions" on business entertainment, the booklet actually is a spoof of the record-keeping required under the new Internal Revenue Service tax rulings.

The booklet, written by Robert C. Kappes and illustrated by artist Paul Daegar, was offered as a gag device for sales meetings, boards of directors and similar business groups.

Juliet's Visitors Not Very Friendly

VERONA, Italy (AP)—Caretakers keep a watchful eye on romantic-minded visitors at the tomb of Juliet in this ancient city. Many of them try to carry off bits of the stone tomb as souvenirs.

Maria Luisa, Duchess of Parma and widow of Napoleon, was one of the most noted souvenir collectors. She had fragments from the tomb set in gold for a necklace and pair of earrings.

Individualism Exists

Monkey Brains Probed

SEATTLE (UPI)—A University of Washington researcher is conducting "split-brain" surgery on monkeys and he hopes his research will answer some questions which have baffled scientists for centuries.

Dr. Mitchell Glickstein says the split-brain technique has the effect of endowing the monkey with two brains that can operate independently of each other.

By severing the corpus callosum, a bundle of nerve fibers which connect the two halves of the brain, Glickstein has found that each hand can be taught different behavior patterns. What one hand is able to do, the other is unable.

The implications for advancing the body of knowledge about brain function are considerable.

"Most of the brain has no clear-cut function that we know of," Glickstein said. "We know roughly that certain areas are responsible for motor function, and touch, visual and auditory sensations.

"However, we know very little about how these areas communicate with each other —for example, how the eye and the hand work together beautifully in millions of ways."

Glickstein said the comparison of the brain to a network of telephone wires has proven to be of little value in understanding the brain's actual function.

To study the coordination of the eye and the hand in the monkey, Glickstein severed another bundle of nerves, the optic chiasm, which transports sight sensations from the eye to the opposite side of the brain. In this way, the picture that one sees will go to that side of the brain only.

With these two bundles of nerves bisected, Glickstein said, the animal will still be able to perform certain tricks which it had learned previously. But now, if the prefrontal areas of the brain are also removed the monkey loses the ability to do these tasks, he added.

Apparently, the monkey forgets how to perform the tricks, leading to the conclusion that the prefrontal areas are somehow involved in the memory of experiences which require coordination of the hand and the eye, he said.

Glickstein said if one prefrontal area is removed, the animal will be able to master the task provided the eye on the intact side of the brain is permitted to see how it is done, but not if that eye is covered.

Saturday Is Dangerous Day On The Highway

NEW YORK (UPI) — Saturday is the most dangerous day of the week on the road.

That's the conclusion of the Travelers Insurance Companies' annual compilation of records of street and highway accidents nationally, based on state motor vehicle records.

The compnay also reports people cause more accidents than roads, weather or defective vehicles.

More than 38 per cent of the fatal accidents which took 40,500 lives in 1962 occurred on weekends, 8,430 on Saturday. In 1961, Saturday also accounted for the greatest number of deaths — 7,670 of a total of 37,600.

Most accidents occur in clear weather and on dry roads. In 1962, 34,400 were killed in perfect weather. Other totals were 1,100 in fog; 3,600 in rain, and 1,400 in snow.

Icy roads were present at only 1,400 fatal accidents with 31,640 persons killed in dry weather.

Slaughter on the road is most often the direct result of violations of rules of the road, according to The Travelers. These include excessive speed, driving on the wrong side of the road, failing to yield the right of way and reckless driving.

Driving after drinking is, of course, an open invitation to the undertaker. Driving too long without rest is another prime cause of accidents.

Of the drivers in fatal accidents in 1962, 43,800 were male and 6,400 were female. It is estimated that females constitute about 30 per cent of all licensed drivers and male drivers about 70 per cent. The exposure factors the amount of driving done by men and women and the conditions under which the driving is done, are unknown. Consequently, there's no proof that women are either better or worse drivers than men.

Boy Hurt By Fluid From Golf Ball Core

EVANSTON, Ill. (UPI)—Fluid squirting from the core of a golf ball after it has been punctured may injure the eye, the American Academy of Pediatrics cautions.

Such an accident was reported in the unusual accidents column of the Academy's newsletter. A child had patiently peeled 250 yards of elastic off a golf ball. He then punctured the rubber core of the ball. The fluid from the core squirted into her eye, injuring it.

If You Want Instant Antique There Is Man To Make It

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI)—Would you like an "instant" antique sign for your home, store or office? Then William Steele is your man.

It started like this. An ice cream firm planned to open a shop in Falmouth on Cape Cod. Mrs. Bernice Warren, Longmeadow interior decorator, and Steele, her assistant, decided a tavern sign or two would enhance the decor of the shop.

But they soon found that 200-year-old signs are hard to come by. A new sign would not have the weatherbeaten appearance of an antique.

Steele volunteered to make an "antique" sign that would appear authentic. Eventually he provided six for the ice cream parlor at Falmouth.

"Wherever did you find such a beautiful collection?" a Cape Cod antique dealer asked Steele.

Steele turned one of the signs around to show the dealer its plywood back and thus disclose the real age. But his skill was too effective.

"No, no, you've ruined it," the dealer said. "You must never attach plywood to an antique sign!"

Steele claims there is no secret process involved in the creation of his "authentic" aged signs. He said that each sign "creates itself suddenly" as he goes along.

Steele starts with a piece of plywood which has a grain and gives a feeling of age. Next comes the design, perhaps a drawing of a house in the town where the sign will be displayed. The design also might be an eagle, a ship, a bird or a single word such as "entertainment."

In the next step, Steele "beats up" the wood, filing, hammering and chipping it to give a worn appearance.

The picture or lettering is then applied and the wood is finished. Next comes the hardware to mount the sign. The hardware comes from a blacksmith who was told to forge some of typical Colonial size and shape. Steele then bangs the hardware "a little here and there" and dents it in places to complete the illusion of long use.

He ages the metal with cinnamon, which forms a lovely "rust" and looks authentic.

Steele's signs would make Paul Revere feel right at home.

SOS Is Sign For Security

COLCHESTER, England (AP)—SOS cards to be displayed in in windows if help is needed have been distributed by the local Rotary Club to more than 150 elderly people here who live alone.

The cards bear the words, "Help Wanted," in black lettering on a red background. Anyone seeing such a card displayed is urged to call at the house immediately or to contact police.

If the pilot scheme proves a success, several thousand cards will be printed and distributed to every elderly or invalided person in Colchester who is living alone.

India's Sikhs Take Brides In Mass Fete

KHOTE, India (UPI) — India's bearded, fighting Sikhs celebrated the 100th anniversay of a unique custom — mass weddings — in a joint ceremeny for 149 couples here.

Two of the bridegrooms came from Thailand and another from Uganda to be married in the spot where the Namdhari sect of Sikhs first introduced the multiple ceremony.

The sect began the practice of mass weddings on June 3, 1863, with the object of sparing its members the huge expenses which normally accompany an Indian marriage ceremony.

This still is the objective. The couples who were wed here paid from 15 cents to $2.50 to tie the knot and were strictly forbidden to accept dowries from the brides' parents.

The brides and bridegrooms stand in a giant circle while attendants tie the ends of their robes together. Then they circle four times around a sacred fire while a priest chants verses from the Sikh holy book, the Granth Sahib.

The inexpensive, 90-minute ceremony ends when the couples untie the knots that connect their robes and eat small dishes of a wheat pudding which has been blessed by the priests.

A million of India's 8 million Sikhs belong to the Namdhari sect. Their wedding customs contrast sharply with those of their Hindu fellow countrymen, who often spend as much as $10,000 on a 24-hour celebration, or give furniture, clothing, gold and automobiles for the bride's dowry.

Hard Way Not To Get License

LOUISVILLE (AP)—If it hadn't been for that diesel locomotive, Frederick Schott, 16, might have gotten his driver's license. He had almost completed the test recently when his car stalled at a railroad crossing. The locomotive was approaching.

Schott and State Trooper E.D. Brown, the examiner, leaped out. The engine hit the car and spun it around into the fleeing driver. Schott suffered a dislocated shoulder.

"I plan to try again," he said, "but I doubt if he will want to go out again with me."

As Town Grew Prairie Dogs Were Run Out, Then Saved

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — Prairie dogs once were as hated as the rattlesnake and as pesky as a corn-stealing crow. Galloping horses tripped in burrows and broke their legs. Cowboys spilled onto the Prairie with broken bones. The farmer joined the range rider in shooting the rodents on sight.

Nine years before the incorporation of Lubbock an estimated 400 million prairie dogs made their home in a 25,000 square mile area surrounding the South Plains city. The city began to grow in 1909, and with its growth the small chattering rodents began to diminish.

The cowboys and farmers who had to put up with the "critters" were only too happy. But Kennedy N. Clapp decided to save the rodents, and more than one million tourists are glad today he did.

In a seven-acre town in McKenzie State Park, located only a few blocks from downtown Lubbock, 600 to 1,000 "dogs" live in cement confines. They frolic and chatter to the delight of children and adults alike. They have no worries except an occasional burrowing owl, the only "outsider" allowed to pitch camp.

The elimination of the prairie rodents was a certainty when McKenzie Park was being planned. But Clapp looked to the future.

"Why poison them?" he said. "Let's preserve them. In 10 years they will be a big attraction."

It only took five years. "Prairie Dog Town, Population?" is a regular stopping place for the 142,000 residents of Lubbock as well as the tourists.

A two-foot high cement wall protects the dogs from the visitors and vice versa. Rolls of chicken wire are buried beneath the wall, which extends four feet under ground. The dogs make no attempt to leave their home.

The rodents received the tag "dog" because of their barking cry, and not due to any kinship with man's best friend. The grey to reddish animals grow to 12 to 15 inches long and weigh from 2-3 pounds. They wag their short black - tipped tail with the regularity of a clock.

Their homes are L-shaped burrows, 12 to 20 feet deep and 6 - 15 feet horizontally. Most have only one entrance, which is banked with earth to keep out water.

The smart little animals have their own warning systems. No vegetation is allowed to be more than six inches high within 100 feet of the burrows. As an intruder approaches, signals are relayed throughout the town, and the dogs "freeze" until a final warning bark is given, sending them scurrying to their home until the danger has passed.

The semi - hibernating animals are vegetarians by circumstance only. They get all the water they need from the grass, weed seeds and other plant life in their "Town."

The rattlesnake, ferret, coyote and badger are chief enemies of the prairie dog, and the burrowing owl is only reluctantly admitted. Snakes sometimes invade burrows for food, but only when they are starving. When they enter, the dogs pitch in and fill the holes with dirt, entombing the intruder.

The owls live only in abandoned burrows, too lazy to dig their own. Owls, who are not against an occasional meal of young prairie dog, are torn to pieces by adult dogs if they try to enter an occupied home.

School To Be Named For Artist Remington

WHITEWATER, Kan. (AP) — Famous American artist Frederic Remington, whose paintings of the now-vanished Wild West are museum pieces, will have a school named for him.

Officials say the Frederic Remington Rural High School at Whitewater will be the only one bearing his name in the United States. Remington, who died in 1909, once owned a sheep ranch six miles from the site of the school.

No Elephant Joke At This Circus

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—Elephant power sometimes comes in handy when horsepower fails, Sam Dyer, elephant handler for the L. G. Kelly and Miller Brothers Circus, is convinced.

He put Hattie, one of his elephant charges, to work pulling a 10-ton circus van half a block uphill to the side of the highway when the truck broke down here.

PUZZLED REACTION

Two works by British sculptor Henry Moore draw perplexed looks from school children visiting the international garden exhibition in Hamburg, West Germany. The titles of the sculptures are "Upright Motive No. 7" and "Lying Figure."

Tougher, Lighter Adhesives Sought

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — Ol' Dobbin can relax, the threat of the glue factory no longer hangs over his hoary head.

Today's adhesive industry is a highly competitive search for newer, lighter and tougher synthetic resins which can patch human arteries or hold a space capsule together.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Economic Research Service reported recently that Americans annually use about two billion pounds of adhesives each year.

These chemical bonding agents play a large role in the space race, military programming, road and skyscraper construction, home building, furniture, clothing and packaging.

In the last 20 years, glue in a variety of forms has in many fields replaced screws, rivets, nails, pegs and soldering.

It takes nine specific glues to enable you to light up that smoke, including those used in packaging and shipping.

The medical profession has successfully used bonding agents to repair human arteries in delicate brain operations and in treatment of aneurysms. Other expoxy resins are employed to weld broken bones in humans and animals.

One of the first to bring resin into the operating room was Dr. Bertram Selverstone, of Tufts University medical school, who began spraying bulging arteries with the clear resilient glue in the late 1950s.

A new product on the market, identified as "resiwell 620" by its maker—the H. B. Fuller Co., St. Paul — is billed as "stronger than concrete, harder than granite, almost unbreakable, resistant to chemicals, weather and the thaw-freeze cycle."

The material is viewed as a boon to state and local highway departments faced with annual spring road depredations and high repair costs.

The garment industry is heading for the day when entire suits will be assembled with near - perfect seams through use of adhesives. New bonding agents are replacing the thread and nails in shoes.

Richard E. Smith, vice president-research and development for Fuller, feels "adhesives are the logical bonding and fabricating agent for airplanes and spacecraft."

Smith said present aircraft adhesives are designed to withstand about 500 degrees fahrenheit, but synthetic glues which will take temperatures up to 1,000 degrees and higher are on the horizon.

Today's automobile contains between 8 and 25 pounds of adhesive material but the day is coming when an entire car will be free of screws, solder and rivets, Smith said.

Present construction and maintenance procedures will be greatly altered by the emergence of new glues, Smith said.

"The practice of bull-dozing out a space in the dirt and dumping several thousand parts into the mud and then laboriously assembling all these parts by hand just cannot be continued," he said. "In the near future, houses will be prefabricated and assembled within a mere fraction of the present field time.

"With future 'glues' being stronger than the metal being bonded, the entire framework such as girders of skyscrapers will be held together without rivets."

Italian, 15, Takes Over Family Shop

TARANTO, Italy (UPI) — At Via Battista 59 in this Mediterranean seaport on the instep of Italy's boot, 15-year-old Cataldo Ranieri does a man's work in a manner that would make any man proud.

Cataldo is probably the world's youngest tire dealer. He not only sells tires through his own dealership, but services customers' cars, repairs tires and tubes, handles contracting, delivery, stock ordering and all correspondence needed to conduct his thriving business.

It is not unusual for a 15-year-old boy in Italy to hold down a full-time job. The average boy Cataldo's age in Taranto earns the equivalent of about $1.50 a day.

In Cataldo's case, there are many differences. He earns enough with the Goodyear dealership to support his entire family—with something to spare. The family consists of himself, his mother, his brother, Aldo, 9, a younger sister, Rita, 11, and an older sister, Lucia, 18, who is attending a secretarial school.

When Cataldo's father died last fall at the age of 47, he bequeathed the business to his eldest son.

The family considered selling the dealership because of Cataldo's age. He was just two months past 15. But Cataldo plunged into the business, working 11 to 12 hours a day, and was able to show a marked increase in business within the first six months.

The tall, dark - haired boy gives the impression of being a little older, but not much. His customers and neighbors judge him as a good businessman who "knows how to make himself respected."

In spite of all this, Cataldo won't be able to legally drive a car himself for three more years. In Italy, the age for getting a driver's license is 18.

But there's some balm. At 16, the young tire dealer who can take cars apart and put them together again will be able to apply for a license to drive a motor scooter.

Two Areas In Oregon Claim Shortest Rivers

DELAKE, Ore. (UPI)—Where flows the world's shortest river?

Few areas would even claim such a stream, but Oregon does it twice, and not without some dispute.

The two groups who occasionally rise to wage hotly the old conflict are residents of the 20 Miracle Miles, a beautifully rugged coastal strip, and natives of Klamath County in southeast Oregon.

A sign on the coast highway here says: "D River, World's Shortest."

In Klamath County, they regard the D River as a toddlers' wading brook, and claim the Link River as the shortest river in the world.

To this, Stan Allyn, a writer and staunch defender of the D, says: "Bilgewash." He says critics of the stream are "bulwarking facts."

George T. Callison, president of the Klamath County Chamber of Commerce, says not only is the Link River the world's shortest, but probably is the only river in the world that flows completely within the confines of an incorporated city—Klamath Falls. He adds that in any event, the debate over the claim is "probably the world's longest."

Allyn backs the claims of the coastal strip residents with some impressive material. He says that in 1940 the Geodetic-Geographic Board in Washington, D.C., authenticated the D River as the world's shortest, based on its officially determined length of 440 feet at low tide. The river runs from Devil's Lake to the Pacific.

An Oregon newspaper recently chided the river with the suggestion that the D River is a creek and further suggested there is some question as to where it begins. Allyn says it begins at the D River bridge on Highway 101. But, asks the paper, which side of the bridge?

The Oregon Highway Commission once refused to place a sign on the bridge stating the river was the world's shortest, but later had a change of heart and installed the sign. But it carries no figures to back up the claim.

Callison says the Link River, which connects Klamath Lake with Lake Ewauna, is 8,000 feet long And there's no doubt that it is a river. It even has a hydroelectric project to take advantage of its fall of 56.1 feet.

Dictionaries, encyclopedias and even the Guiness World Book of Records offer no help.

The D or not the D, seems to be the question. Or the Link.

Teacher Has Plan For College Credits

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Prof. William Stivers of Pepperdine College, Los Angeles, is trying to persuade educational authorities to approve his plan for simultaneously teaching two college subjects that will give a student credit for two years' work in one.

His idea: teach alegbra (one credit) in the French language (second credit). Stivers disclosed his program while serving as a visiting professor at the University of Wichita.

Most Lakes, Ponds Have Little Fish

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) —Most lakes and ponds in the United States have too many fish in them to provide large catches, according to Dr. Edwin L. Cooper, professor of zoology at the Pennsylvania State University.

Fish surveys by Cooper reveal that lakes or ponds, closed to fishing, seldom produce big ones because of intense competition for food.

Thieves Go About Job The Hard Way

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—Thieves broke into the Delta Vending Co. here recently, stole a 400-pound safe and tore it apart.

For one thing, the safe wasn't locked. And for another, there wasn't anything in it.

Sleeping Short

NEW YORK (UPI)—More than 10.5 million Americans are sleeping on beds too short for their comfort, according to the Latex Foam Rubber Council. Citing sleep authorities, the Council said any person five feet, 10 inches tall needs an extra-size bed or at least a "Long Boy."

Elite Forces Of U.S. Train At Spot Used By Hitler SS

BAD TOELZ, West Germany (UPI)—Elite special forces of the U.S. Army now train in this Bavarian Alps resort area where Adolf Hitler's elite SS officers once trained.

Their swimming pool is run by a man who once trained SS underwater demolition experts.

The 10th Special Forces Group (Airborne) shares the former SS facilities with the 7th Army's Noncommissioned Officers' Academy, whose commander sits behind a desk which once belonged to German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel.

The Academy seeks publicity; the special forces prefer obscurity, training behind the scenes in peacetime to operate behind enemy lines in wartime.

The special forces, expanding under President Kennedy's order to increase U.S. potential for counter-insurgency, have a wide range of talents for cold and hot wars alike.

These are highly-select men who can be—and teach foreign allies to be—"quick and dirty" in a variety of ways from killing with the slash of a hand to blowing up bridges with nuclear devices.

But these lean and learned specialists are more than guerrilla warfare commandos. They are trained to help prevent, as well as suppress, insurgency through a spectrum of political, economic, psychological and other means besides military.

From less than 1,000 men with a total of 24 languages, the 10th Special Forces Group could supply experts to work with friendly groups or countries over an extensive area that includes western Europe, Russia and its satellites, North Africa and the Middle East.

A similar group, the 8th, is in Panama with responsibility for Latin America. The 1st group on Okinawa has responsibility in the Far East. From among the 5th, 6th and 7th groups at Fort Bragg, North Carolina, come experts in sub-Sahara Africa and elsewhere. The special forces which have operated in Laos and Viet Nam have come from both Okinawa and Fort Bragg.

Officers and enlisted men with skills acquired in South Viet Nam are helping train the 10th group at Bad Toelz.

A special forces group is capable of not only limited warfare and subversion against hostile states, but also of helping friendly groups in evasion and escape activities. In 1960, for example, a small team from the 10th group helped 200 whites endangered in the Congo to escape.

Since 1961, the emphasis of U.S. special forces has been on counter-insurgency against Communist-inspired and led foes of friendly governments, as in South Viet Nam.

The actual places and types of current operation of the European-based 10th group are a secret. But the training schedule reflects what they are capable of doing wherever special forces go.

Among subjects taught are techniques of chemical, biological and radiological warfare, communications, demolition, intelligence agent, recruiting and other clandestine skills; judo, languages, medicine, nuclear weapons employment and photography.

(Officers here declined to say what "nuclear weapons employment" meant. But in Washington the Pentagon said this referred to demolition devices.)

A special forces man uses a variety of devices to get where he wants to go, including parachute, skis and underwater air tanks.

When a special forces team arrives at its destination, its most important mission often is to teach others its skills. The team amounts to a military assistance advisory group for guerrilla elements.

The basic unit of the special forces is a detachment of a captain, lieutenant and ten sergeants skilled in intelligence, weapons, demolition and medicine.

Many of the men who wear the green beret of the special forces are foreign-born. But all are American citizens. The 10th group is not assigned to NATO and does not share its secrets with allies.

Col. Salve H. Matheson, the 10th's commanding officer, will discuss with visitors only the broadest aspects of his mission.

But he will acknowledge that one of his major problems is to find soldiers skilled in languages.

When one is found, and trained at Bad Toelz, he is one of the most skilled soldiers in any man's army.

Flemish Treasures Guarded In Bruges

BRUGES, Belgium (UPI)—Even the seasoned traveler must be impressed by his first visit to this picturesque capital of Belgium's province of West Flanders.

Only 60 miles northwest of Brussels, Bruges has managed to preserve its medieval charm and beauty.

During the 13th and 14th centuries, Bruges was one of the most important commercial and cultural centers in Northern Europe. But the "Zwin" estuary, which gave it direct access to the sea, became clogged with silt in the 15th century and its power and glory faded.

Through the years, however, the proud Flemings guarded the countless art and historical treasures of the city.

Entering the old city, which is surrounded and criss-crossed by canals (Bruges is sometimes called the "Venice of Belgium"), the visitor feels as if he has stepped back in time to the Middle Ages.

Fronting the old market place—the city's main square—is the 280-foot-high belfry which dates back to the 13th century and is one of the oldest Gothic structures in Belgium. Its carillon, made up of 47 bells weighing a total of 27 tons, is world famous.

There are numerous other attractions to delight the visitor. Included are 16 different museums (the tourist can purchase a Museum Card entitling him to one visit to each at the reduced rate of 50 francs or $1 U.S.), centuries-old cathedrals and churches, quaint old gabled houses, ancient quays, a nunnery dating back to the 1200s, four turreted town gates which were part of the old walled fortifications, scores of age-old bridges and a stone castle.

A "must" is a visit to the imposing Basilica of the Holy Blood and the Church of Our Lady. The Basilica on Burg (Castle) Square consists of two superimposed chapels. The upper chapel contains the reliquary which tradition says holds a few drops of the blood of Jesus brought from Palestine in 1150 by a prince who took part in the Crusades. A colorful Procession of the Holy Blood is held annually in early May.

Adjoining the Basilica is the turreted Town Hall, another outstanding example of Gothic architecture.

A short walk away—on Sinte-Katelinjestraat—is the 13th century Church of Our Lady with its striking 375-foot tower. The church is famed for its many paintings, carvings and white marble statue of the Virgin and Child sculpted by Michelangelo.

Museums range from collections of old furniture and household utensils to sculptures and paintings by some of the great Flemish artists.

The Groeninge Museum houses an exceptionally rich collection, including masterpieces by Jan Van Eyck, Hugo Van Der Goes, Hans Memling and others.

For the tourist who prefers sitting down to walking while sightseeing, there are tours by buses and also by small motorboats which ply the placid canals.

Burges is easily accessible by land or sea. It is 15 miles from Zeebrugge, a main port of call for the Holland-America Line and other transatlantic shipping, and 60 miles southwest of Belgium's main port of Antwerp by good roads.

A Real Ker-chooooo

LOOKOUT HEIGHTS, Ky. (AP)—State Police said Margaret Porter lost control of her car when she sneezed and it ran off Kixie Highway in Northern Kentucky, striking a utility pole. A trip to a physician showed she was uninjured in the crash but the sneeze broke her nose.

Trucking Draws From Many Fields

CHICAGO (UPI) — He who drives a truck rides on the wheels of fortune. He may bring home $15,000 a year.

And so do the truck driver's associates, without whom he'd never get on the road, according to a report by the American Trucking Assn., Inc.

The field of trucking absorbes the services of teachers, clerks, engineers, accountants, skilled workers, doctors, lawyers, merchants, firemen and insurance specialists.

Paul E. Moler, personnel director of Consolidated Freightways, Inc., said: We can use people from every field."

Astronauts, Indian chiefs and politicians. And union bosses.

The industry isn't so brash as to claim a larger number of employees than the government, but vows it ranks second. And the industry says a public servant rarely makes a trucking salary.

The association is intent on exploding the theory that trucking is made up of a bunch of hulking guys who habitate roadside eating spots.

When it comes to income, many of the long-haul drivers took home more than $15,000 last year, the association claims.

As for the trucker's cultural and educational level, the industry says a driver with a college degree is no longer a rare bird.

Opera lovers, stereo addicts and part-time artists are flooding the industry, the industry report said.

The truck driver often heads a suburban family, belongs to the country club and sends his children to college.

Lots Of School Bands, Not Many Orchestras

INTERLOCHEN, Mich (UPI)—Most of the nation's high schools are without orchestras because publicity-minded education officials prefer well-drilled bands playing at football games, according to Dr. Joseph E. Maddy.

The founder and head of the National Music Camp at Interlochen and of the new Interlochen Arts Academy made it clear he is not opposed to school bands. He has organized quite a few of them himself. But he does feel that the kind of music training given in high school orchestras also is needed if future demands for skilled musicians are to be met.

Maddy gave an interview marking publication of his biography, "Joe Maddy of Interlochen," written by Norma Lee Browning, a Chicago Tribune reporter who is turning all her royalties from the book over to Maddy to help finance formation of an International Youth Symphony. The biography, marking Maddy's 35th anniversary at Interlochen, reviews his sometimes turbulent career as the "pied piper of American music," but right now Maddy would rather talk about the future.

It is his conviction that automation eventually will set off a cultural explosion in this country, with more people than ever before becoming artists, musicians, writers and dancers. The arts, in turn, will serve as a major means of helping to solve the unemployment problems created by automation, in his opinion.

After 50 years of stumping the nation in behalf of music education, Maddy still is searching as hard as ever for new talent. He has been encountering a few problems lately, however. For one thing, he says, not enough young people are learning to play the violin, and the string bass is the least popular instrument of all. The flute seems to be too popular. Maddy turns away more flute players than any other musicians who apply for admission to his camp and preparatory school.

There is a shortage of budding Beethovens and Bachs, he finds. Most of the young people who try to write music are falling short of the mark, in his opinion, because too many of them try to start with symphonies, which are the most difficult pieces of music to compose, instead of beginning with something simple and advancing by degrees.

However, the development of new talent through the group training offered by high school orchestras would be the most useful step forward, as far as Maddy is concerned.

"Ninety per cent of the high schools have no orchestras," he said. "The boards of education are interested in helping football, so the schools have bands.

Talk Plainly For Sake Of Secretary

NEW YORK (UPI) — Note to executives: If your letters are error-prone lately the trouble may be with your dictation, not your secretary's typing.

A testing firm discovered in tests of dictating equipment that errors are likely if names are dictated without being spelled, if the dictator's enunciation is poor, if he excessively raises or lowers his voice and if words unfamiliar to the secretary are used.

Triangle Means Slow For Tractor

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—An orange triangle, outlined in red and reflective, has been developed for slow-moving farm vehicles through facilities of Ohio State University's College of Agriculture and the Ohio Farm and Home Safety Committee.

It's to be mounted behind a tractor seat, or on the rear of farm equipment being towed, to caution motorists that the vehicle is moving slower than normal traffic.

'IT'S A SIMPLE process of word association," says Marin artist Carla Flood, who as the mother of three children, works in the kitchen-studio of her Lucas Valley home designing the Christmas card for the Marin Family Service League.

Marin Artist Gives Yuletide Definition In Card For League

The three wise men, an angel, Santa Claus, and a reindeer. These are the words that turn the creative talents of artist Carla M. Flood to the task of designing Christmas cards—even on a sunny day in October.

"It's a simple process of word association," explains the Lucas Valley artist, who was chosen to design the Christmas card for Marin's Family Service League.

"I start writing down words that have a connotation of Christmas, and as I think, I begin to sketch. The sketch grows and the final design eventually comes. Sometimes just one word will motivate a design . . . other times, the whole sketch must be discarded and begun again."

BECAUSE FAMILY Service Agency serves people of all races and religions, the league's card design must have universal appeal. Describing it, Carla Flood says, "My design turned out to be almost folk-art of 'a partridge in a pear tree' with a contemporary style. And to me, Christmas means bright, happy colors—thus the card is magenta and orange."

While the artist says she is first and foremost a wife and mother, Christmas cards are only a part of her work in the field of color and design. Arjacent to the kitchen-studio of the Flood's home is the paraphernalia of a working artist, and there Carla is often joined by her seven-year-old son, Kirk, daughter Jenifer, 6, and Kathy, 4.

PAINTING WAS a predominant part of Carla's own childhood in Toronto, Canada, where art lessons began at the age of seven and continued long after her family moved to Piedmont. During grammar school, she commuted by bus and street car every Saturday morning to the California College of Arts and Crafts to take fundamental courses.

At Piedmont High School, while classmates chose typing and business electives, Carla always took art courses and also learned the rudiments of commercial art—poster designing, lettering, and mechanical drawing. Later, at the University of California where she majored in fine arts, she worked with the university's art bureau and continued to produce commercial art and promotional material.

AFTER A THREE months trip to India as part of a graduate travel team in U.C.'s Project Pakistan-India-Ceylon, Carla returned home to look for a job in the field of advertising. "I had the experience of toting 40 paintings around to all the San Francisco ad agencies, only to have them ask, 'Can you type, or take shorthand?'. Eventually, I went to work as a copy typist, (even though I couldn't type), until a position opened in the agency's art department," she says.

Toying with the idea of returning to India, Carla took a vacation trip to Acapulco, where she met Jerrol Flood, who "changed her mind about becoming an international career artist," and after their marriage, the couple moved to Marin. Mr. Flood is a methods and planning analyst for a San Francisco insurance company.

Carla's other community activities have included AAUW, Sunny Hills, the Peter Pan Chapter of Children's Home Society, and she is past president of Pixie Parents and the Marin Society of Artists.

THE FAMILY SERVICE League's Christmas card will soon be available at The Cottage, 21 Madrone, in Mill Valley, or from card chairman Mrs. Leighton Hatch.

CARLA FLOOD says that her final design turned out to be almost a folk art "partridge in a pear tree" done in the happy colors of magenta and orange. Painting has been a predominant part of Carla's life since she was a child growing up in Toronto. (Independent-Journal photos by Jim Kean)

Luncheon Planned To Aid New Project

Marin Foundation (formerly Friends of Arequipa) will present a luncheon Wednesday at Neville's on the Boardwalk in Belvedere to introduce to its county-wide membership its new project, establishment of a group home for teen-age girls.

Hostess unit for the 12:30 p.m. champagne luncheon is the Belvedere-Tiburon Driftwood group. Fashions will be modeled during the luncheon, with Mrs. Ralph Noah commentating.

"Establishment of a girls' group home by the Marin Foundation will meet a need in the Marin community for care of girls whose circumstances do not justify residence in Juvenile Hall or foster homes," says Mrs. Jacob Lindenbaum of San Rafael, president of the nine-unit organization. The County Board of Supervisors are in accord with this project and have been invited to attend the luncheon, she said. The home is scheduled to be opened in January, 1964.

New members of each of the units will be honored at the luncheon, to which all past masters are invited, announced Mrs. James W. Clarke of Belvedere, luncheon chairman. Reservations chairman is Mrs. Berton Jacobson, 40 Lagoon Road, Belvedere.

Mrs. William A. Main, Driftwood unit chairman, is in charge of luncheon arrangements, assisted by Mesdames William Healey Jr. and Jack Himmelwright, decorations; Walter Machette and Richard Bates, door committee, all of Belvedere. Modeling the fashions will be Mesdames L. A. White, James Crittenden, John Pelkan, Robert Joses and Leon Julian.

Russian Tots Have Advantage, Says A Toy Firm's President

Russian children, raised in a deliberate "prepared environment," have a definite educational advantage over American youngsters, Frank Caplan, president of a toy firm said today.

"What we do for a child to stimulate his will to learn will be the greatest single influence in his life," he says. "How well the child does in school, how easily he will absorb new ideas, even how completely he masters the complexities of higher education, rests in the home, in the hands of parents, today."

IN RUSSIA, he reports, the child six months of age spends his full days in nurseries and day-care centers under a planned program, directed by professional educators. A trained staff takes the place of parents. In America, the mother seldom devotes eight hours a day to the exclusive care of her children. Their training is left to her instincts, varying abilities, and patience. She often has no idea of the influence exerted by playthings which she gives the child. She is in the dark about the opportunities a prepared environment in the home can offer.

"The American mother cages up the child in a limited playpen or crib. She may give him toys that are mere status symbols, frustrating, easily broken, with little play value. Often, to save the parents' time and energies, the toys are accompanied by such detailed 'blueprints' they eliminate any stimulus for the child's imagination," he said.

The Russians' program of offering the child raw materials with which to improvise is an element of their child-training system which particularly impressed Mr. Caplan. In the Children's World store in Moscow he found a whole section offering pieces of wood, magnets, motors and a disassorted array of odds and ends directed to invention and discovery, with no diagrams, no model kits, nothing to tell the child what to do with them. "The finished product of his efforts is probably extremely crude," he commented, "but he has the opportunity to explore, devise, invent for himself."

MR. CAPLAN BELIEVES Americans tend to restrict the child by giving him too many blueprints and limiting details. "We need to give our children a varied assortment of science, biology and electronics material without limiting instructions.

"We can give the child much more stimulus for his imagination if we provide him with materials he can explore and build with. It's fun to improvise. Children ought to have the opportunity to learn to make decisions for themselves about the world they live in. Imagination is a part of resourcefulness, and if there's anything we need to give our children today, it is the resourcefulness to meet whatever unknown conditions the future may confront them with."

In one respect, Mr. Caplan found America far ahead of the USSR. Behind the Iron Curtain, he found a complete lack of good toys as we know them.

"The Russian teachers are brilliant. The toymakers are not as competent."

THE CHILDREN have been taught skills, but have developed no sense of beauty of aesthetic pleasure. He found no new toys to satisfy a child's high-spirited sense of sheer fun. He noted that there appeared to be little communication between the educators and the manufacturers of play materials.

"Here in America, we have the freedom and the available materials to provide children in their formative years with the 'prepared environment.'

"BY THE TIME the child reaches school age," Mr. Caplan warns, "it may be too late. Children as young as two, and younger, find it easy to learn. They can master skills and sometimes even complex ideas. They need stimulating, imagination-provoking creative playthings."

Originally a nursery school teacher and an authority on early childhood education, Mr. Caplan has directed his career to the study and providing of playthings which offer values beyond gimmicky, garish, quickly useless toys.

Stressing the importance of a prepared environment, he has prepared a catalogue as a guide and reference book for parents. In it, he sets forth in capsule form the best thinking of experts on the potentials of a child's playthings.

The book covers the need for freedom of movement at an early age, and suggests the climbers, ride 'em trucks and toys which provide for it. It explains the child's need for unit blocks and construction toys with which to plan and build any structure he wants.

THESE DISCOVERY toys have been developed as a result of studies, financed by the government, now being undertaken by a group of scientists concerned with upgrading American education at the preschool and elementary levels. Their findings point to a need to focus attention on learning through handling, touching and observing, even before a child can comprehend verbal explanations.

Clymer-Croft Nuptials In Mill Valley

San Rafael is the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Howard Clymer, who were married recently at the Church of Our Saviour in Mill Valley.

The Rev. D. Murray Hammond officiated at the ceremony for which the bride, Laureen Rae Croft of San Rafael, was given in marriage by her father. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Croft of Salt Lake City.

Jane Palmer was maid of honor and the bridegroom's sister, Lois, was bridesmaid. Ralph Clymer served his brother as best man. Kenneth Sandstrom escorted guests to seats.

Mill Valley Golf Club was the setting for the reception, and the couple left on a Yosemite wedding trip.

The bride attended Salt Lake school and the University of Utah. She is employed by Blum's in San Francisco. Wayne Croft is her brother.

Her husband, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clymer of Mill Valley, was graduated from Tamalpais High School and attended the College of Marin for two years. He is employed by RDM Automotive in San Francisco. Wilson is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Clymer of Goodland, Ind., and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Peirano of Marysville.

Nancy May Spencer Becomes Bride Of David Papenhausen

St. Patrick's Church in Larkspur was the setting for the wedding Saturday afternoon of Nancy May Spencer of Mill Valley and David Russell Papenhausen of Sausalito.

The ceremony was performed at 2:30 o'clock by the Rev. Francis Scanlon of Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church in Mill Valley.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Spencer of Mill Valley, was given in marriage by her father. She wore a full length gown of ivory candlelight satin with a train.

Gowned in full length dresses of gold satin were the bride's cousin, Kathleen Spencer of Fresno, maid of honor; and Mrs. Stanley Wisnes of San Rafael and Barbara Bosl of Sausalito, bridesmaids.

The junior bridesmaid, Heddy Schramm of Greenbrae, and the flower girl, Suzanne Fox of Mill Valley, wore short dresses of gold organza with full skirts.

Best man for the bridegroom, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell H. Papenhausen of Sausalito, was Scott Alexander of Sausalito. Ushers were the bridegroom's only brother, John H. Paupenhausen of Sausalito, Stanley Wisnes of San Rafael and Rudolph Bush of Mill Valley.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Alta Mira Hotel in Sausalito, and the young couple left afterward for a honeymoon at an undisclosed destination. They will live in Greenville, Calif.

The new Mrs. Papenhausen was graduated from Tamalpais High School, attended the College of Marin and worked with her father at their Tennessee Valley Stables in Mill Valley. She has one brother, Thomas Spencer of Fresno, a laboratory assistant in physics at Fresno State College.

David, a graduate of Tamalpais High School, attended Heald's Business College in San Francisco before he entered service with the U.S. Marine Corp. He is employed with his father in the building contracting business.

His grandmothers are Mesdames Harry Briggs of Cotati and Henry Papenhausen of Cloverdale.

Professors Argue Cancer Statistics

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK —The distinguished professor of surgery at the University of Pennsylvania has formally accused the distinguished professor of surgery at the University of Southern California of playing tricks with the statistics relating to cigarette smoking and lung cancer.

In view of Dr. I. S. Ravdin, who also is current president of the American Cancer Society, Dr. Ian Macdonald was "purposely or inadvertently misleading" when he "manipulated" the lung cancer probability in any block of 100,000 men 40 to 70 years old.

Macdonald had figured that the non-smokers in such a block had a 99.6 per cent chance of not developing lung cancer. Smokers of less than one pack daily had a 97 per cent and smokers of more than one pack a 94.7 per cent. Macdonald hadn't found these differences meaningful as an indictment of cigarette smoking.

Ravdin did find them meaningful, when viewed from another angle.

"The data indicate clearly that the non-smoker has a negligible chance of dying of lung cancer, the heavy smoker, better than a 5 per cent," he said.

"Applying such data to a field in which both he (Macdonald) and I are familiar and competent, such as surgical mortality or the risk of an anesthetic agent, we could both surely agree that a remarkable enhancement of safety has been achieved by removal of the toxic agent."

Ravdin was editorializing in "Surgery, Gynecology and Obstetrics," a publication of the American College of Surgeons, where Macdonald editorialized last February in disparagement of the case against cigarette-smoking as a cause of lung cancer.

Macdonald, Radvin said, "presented some views which are contrary to the opinion held by most medical authorities on the effects of cigarette smoking." These views were perhaps "entertaining," he added, and were "doubtlessly comforting to both inveterate smokers and commercial interests."

But they contained "distortions and misconceptions." Ravdin commented critically on these, point by point. He also looked at the statistics from the angle of the probability of a male over 35 surviving to 65. Out of 100,000 heavy cigarette smokers 59,000 will so survive but 77,000 out of 100,000 nonsmokers will, he said.

Macdonald had said tobacco is "the oldest and surely the safest tranquilizer of all." This, Ravdin commented, was "a historical distortion" about which Macdonald surely has had "second thoughts," since the facts are these:

"Tobacco itself, in western culture, dates back perhaps 400 years; cigarettes on any large scale less than 50 years. Alcohol, with a history measured in millenia, and tea are considerably more venerable."

He denied Macdonald's accusation that the scientific authorities who condemn cigarettes for health reasons have "the "Volsteadian intent" of prohibiting cigarette-smoking by law.

But "there is a conviction that sufficient evidence is at hand to support the belief that cigarette smoking is a health hazard of major proportions and that the public at large is entitled to a vigorous presentation of this evidence with its inevitable and reasonable conclusions."

Asian Eyes Focused On Red China

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Warily, all Southeast Asia eyes the Red Chinese forces squatting along the border of India.

It looks like a political squat.

But, as they say in this area, who wants to predict what the Red Chinese will do?

Those troops have an impact, whether or not they are on the move. Their potential for mischief is enough to set in motion forces which are changing the course of Asia's cold war politics.

Among many in Southeast Asia, India's dilemma is viewed with a certain amount of grim satisfaction. There is not much love for the Indians among their neighbors to the east.

Inside India, Prime Minister Nehru remains strong and keeps a firm grip on his Congress Party, despite burgeoning restiveness.

In the eyes of other Asians, India is not quite the same India, and Nehru is not quite the same Nehru since last October, when the Chinese attacked and humiliated Indian troops. The event had strong impact in the rest of Asia.

Nehru, the man who had deplored reliance on arms, the man who once embraced the Chinese propaganda slogans of peaceful coexistence and noninterference, turned for arms to those he had called colonialists and imperialists.

True, Nehru and the Indians considered the Chinese the only sinners and still welcomed the support of the Soviet Union. But was India now in a position to call herself nonaligned? Was she not aligned with the West in opposing the great Communist power in Asia?

Nehru says he was the major target of that Chinese attack. He indicates it was an attempt to destroy him as the dominant figure of nonalignment in Asia. He will not agree that they succeeded, but his attitude suggests his experience has been bitter.

Nehru's health is a matter of concern in New Delhi. Ever since the October crisis he has been working long hours, cutting down his rest, constantly occupied by the heavy duties of the prime ministry, the foreign ministry and the leadership of his far-flung Congress Party.

Nehru suffered setbacks at home, as well as in foreign policy. He was defeated in several prestige by-elections and set back on some of his reform measures.

Inevitably, there is speculation about who will succeed Nehru, and already there is much maneuvering and countermaneuvering going on.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Medical Science Finds New Drug To Treat Victims Of Trichomoniasis

VAN DELLEN

An oral remedy is available now for trichomoniasis in men and women. Success rates in clearing up this pelvic infection ranged from 83 to 100 per cent within 10 days to two weeks. In brief, the drug has rendered obsolete other methods of treatment. In the past, this disorder has proved stubborn; it usually recurred, no matter what was done.

Trichomonas vaginitis occurs in 15 per cent or more of all married women. It is one cause of an abnormal yellowish secretion (leucorrhea) accompanied by itching, discomfort in the lower abdomen, and burning on urination. In some instances, the outer parts of the reproductive organs and adjacent thighs become red and tender. Symptoms vary from time to time but usually get worse prior to, during, and immediately after menstruation.

THE DIAGNOSIS is made by examining the secretions under a microscope. The culprit is the protozoa, Trichomonas vaginalis, a one-celled organism with a three-pronged, whiplike tail. These trichomonads may be found anywhere around the reproductive organs but, as a rule, are confined to the vagina, cervix, and external areas.

The disease was a troublesome problem before the new drug became available. The physician swabbed the region with antiseptics and prescribed a variety of douches, suppositories, insufflation powders, or jellies for home treatment. The infection returned all too often, despite careful and persistent therapy.

WE NOW KNOW that in many instances, the husband also harbored the parasites. They settled in the prostate and other glands along the tube leading from the bladder to the outside. There were no symptoms such as occurred in the female, hence the infection usually escaped detection. Furthermore, the area did not lend itself to the same type of treatment.

The new trichomonacide should change all this. Many articles have appeared in the medical journals on the use of metronidazole, the generic name of the drug. One report said that 57 of a group of men so treated were cured. Best of all, the drug is safe to use. But it is not recommended during pregnancy or among those with blood or nerve disorders.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

OVARIAN CYSTS

Mrs. M. writes: What are the symptoms of cysts on an ovary?

REPLY

Many women with cysts are unaware of their existence until menstrual disorders develop which, in turn, call for examination. Others suffer from pain in the pelvic area, or the cyst so enlarges that the abdomen swells.

DAILY SEDATIVE

H. W. writes: Would a blood test show whether a person is using barbiturates every day?

REPLY

There are chemical tests for barbiturates in the blood serum but I doubt if the ordinary clinical laboratory will do them.

UNBEKNOWN INFECTION

D. Z. writes: Can a person have syphilis and not know it?

REPLY

Yes, and many persons have had this experience because the initial lesion (chancre) escaped detection.

VALUE NOT DOUBLED

J. M. D. writes: Is a double kidney stronger than a regular kidney?

REPLY

No. It is difficult to improve on the normal.

Third Quarter Profits Continue To Be High

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Profits for most companies continued on the pleasant high road in the third quarter. And the outlook for the majority seems even brighter for the final months of the year.

First reports show many industrial leaders well ahead of year-ago earnings. Some are setting record highs in earnings after taxes. Only a small minority trail 1962 results.

Much of the current gain is due to increased sales and output. But for industry as a whole there has been a welcome widening of the profit margin—a higher net return on each sales dollar—after years of a tightening trend.

And some of the reported after-tax profits would be even larger if the new additional depreciation deductions for tax purposes were figured in, as in previous years. The companies have more cash to spend but lower book earnings to report.

Some bellwethers of industry already have reported on operations for the three months ending Sept. 30. And in most instances the gain over last year is marked. Ahead are such giants as American Telephone and Telegraph, General Electric, International Business Machines, Radio Corporation of America, Firestone and Safeway Stores.

Since many industries and companies normally make their best returns in the fourth quarter, confidence is high for a record year when the final bookkeeping results are in.

The gain has been steady this year. The April-May-June quarter returns ran on average 12 per cent ahead of the January-February-March results, and 16 per cent better than the second quarter of 1962. The first quarter itself had been 4 per cent higher than the like 1962 period.

Funeral Prices Might Be Probed

MONTEREY PARK (AP)—Rep. George E. Brown Jr. (D-Calif.) says he may seek a Congressional investigation into the high prices of funeral and burial services. The Monterey Park congressman said his interest in the matter was aroused by one of his constituents, Mrs. Ruby Mulvey Harmer, author of the recent best-seller, "The High Cost of Dying."

Mrs. Harmer has said funeral service lobbyists in some states have secured special legislation requiring embalming and the use of caskets for cremations. She says these are unnecessary, and adds that some funeral directors tell customers they are required, even when they aren't.

U.S. Announces Nuclear Blasts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission has announced detonation of two nuclear devices at its underground test site in Nevada.

One of Friday's blasts related to weapons development, the AEC said, and the other to peaceful uses of the atom. Both were described as low yield, meaning they had an explosive force less than that of 20,000 tons of TNT.

There have been six weapons tests since the agreement on a treaty to halt all except underground nuclear testing.

Horse Fans Protest

LONDON (UPI)—The British Broadcasting Corp. said today it received telephone calls from 600 protesting viewers after it canceled a horse race telecast Saturday to broadcast Deputy Prime Minister R. A. Butler's speech from the Conserv-Blackpool.

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The receptionist in the superior court jury commissioner's office warned the man who came to return his jury summons that "we don't excuse people because of their jobs."

But when she learned the reluctant prospective juror was Judge Elmer D. Doyle, who presides in a courtroom just around the hall from her office, she wrote on the summons: "Permanently excused from jury duty."

Open Heart Surgery Planned For Girl

Kim Chapin, first grader at Gallinas School in Santa Venetia, is looking forward to going on an adventure in a few days.

Kim, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bronce Chapin of 22 Adrian Way, Santa Venetia, will pack a small bag, tuck her toy dog under her arm and leave for Children's Hospital in San Francisco.

There she is scheduled to have open heart surgery to correct a cardiac malfunction that she has had since birth.

Kim says she is looking forward to her visit to the hospital "because she likes nurses" and is going to be one when she grows up. Her grandmother, Mrs. Florence Arnold, is a nurse at Marin General Hospital.

The decision to undergo the open heart surgery at this time was made by doctors because it is the most ideal time for her to have the corrective operation.

Fellow workers of Nichelini Co. of San Rafael, where Chapin is employed as a plasterer have given blood for Kim's operation at the Marin Blood Center, 506 Fourth Street.

Many pints of blood are needed for this operation, in which the heart lung machine is used. Also, a reserve supply must be kept for additional treatment, if necessary.

In a resolution signed by president Richard P. Goodson, the club stated it will support the "fight for freedom from filth in mass media, particularly obscene and pornographic magazines and paperbacks."

An effort is promised to "do all things necessary to obtaining arrest, prosecution and conviction of filth peddlers whose products . . . act as a catalytic agent of moral decay across . . . our beloved nation."

The resolution asks President John F. Kennedy to supplement law enforcement against "criminals who purvey obscenity."

MARIN'S SOCIAL WHIRL

Mr. And Mrs. McAndrew Host Dinner For Dignitaries

BY FLORENCE DONNELLY

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander McAndrew of Ross had as their dinner guests Saturday night John Nelson-Williams and his escort from the United States State Department, Arthur Taylor. Nelson-Williams is minister of Information in Sierra Leone, in Africa, which recently achieved its independence. Mr. and Mrs. McAndrew had previously met his brother Dr. Claude Nelson-Williams.

Mrs. McAndrew's son, Michael McCone, is director of the Peace Corps in Sierra Leone and he and his wife, the former Nini Charles, and their three children live there. Last night Mrs. McCone's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Charles, entertained at dinner at their San Francisco home for John Nelson-Williams and Mr. Taylor. Nelson-Williams is particularly interested in radio and TV programs projected here.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE SCHIRMER of Kent Woodlands enjoy greatly the San Francisco Opera and attend performances two times a week. In the offing is the party the Schirmers plan for the Robert Byards Jr. of Mill Valley when they return from their travels in Europe and elsewhere.

SANDRA K. SCHMITZ, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert F. Schmitz of Fairhills, the former A. W. Foster estate in San Rafael, has returned from a six weeks trip to the Philippines and the Orient. Sandra stopped en route in Hawaii to visit her aunt, Mrs. Thomas Morley and toured all the islands.

Sandra flew to Manila, where she was met by her former classmate at Dominican Upper School, Marjorie Richards. Both were graduated as honor students. Sandra was entertained by Marjorie's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Richards of Cebu City in the Philippines. All came to the party for Sandra in native costumes. In Manila Marjorie's friends had entertained for Sandra. Sandra and Marjorie toured the islands of the Philippines, then returned to Manila, flew to Hong Kong and Tokyo and returned via Anchorage, Alaska to San Francisco. Sandra is a freshman at University of Santa Clara and Marjorie is a freshman at University of Oregon at Eugene, Oregon.

THE HAPPIEST fiftieth wedding anniversary party I ever attended was the one given Saturday for Mr. and Mrs. John (Jack) Fitzhenry of San Anselmo by their son Robert (Bob) Fitzhenry of Kent Woodlands and his wife, the former Barbara Seitz, and the senior Fitzhenrys' daughter, Mrs. Robert C. Moulton (Doris Fitzhenry) of Albany and her husband.

It took quite a while to unravel the family connections. Barbara Fitzhenry is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Seitz (she is the twin sister of Mrs. James B. Phelps), and their brother is Otto Weissich. He came to the party with his youthful looking wife. The Weissichs are parents of the well known attorney, William Weissich, who was accompanied by his wife. Mrs. Phelps and Mrs. Seitz did a marvelous thing in the floral decorations of the home. Quite dramatic was the cutting of the huge wedding cake with its golden leaves in the white frosting.

So many people I knew attended, among them Dr. and Mrs. Harry Hensler, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Lowe, Mr. and Mrs. Dare Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Riley, Mrs. Elizabeth Stutz, widow of Jack Stutz, many years a friendly member of the Marin County Clerk's staff. I went with Margaret Sinnott with thet F. J. Kochs of Terra Linda. I was interested to learn that Mrs. Koch is a member of a pioneer California family and that her great grandfather was Hiram Johnson, governor of California.

The role of a Parent-Teacher Assn. program in secondary education will be discussed by a panel of P-TA leaders and school administrators Thursday at Kenilworth Junior High School in Petaluma, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

How To Make Togs Come Clean

CROWN POINT, Ind. (UPI)—To remove grass stains from the children's clothes, work from the wrong side of the fabric, forcing the stain out instead of in, suggests Minerva Partin, county extension agent in home economics.

On washable fabrics, work a detergent into the stain, then rinse. If the stain is stubborn and remains after this treatment use a chlorine or sodium perborate bleach or hydrogen peroxide, she says.

More Flattering

Hat shapes are more flattering and not so bulky now that they don't have to compete with teased big-dome hair styles. Bowlers swaggers, snap brims, high rounded turbans and little tailored hats all rate in the popularity parade.

Sausalito Harvest Festival Set Saturday

Saturday is the day set for the annual Sausalito Harvest Festival at Christ Church, announced Mrs. Frederic Palmer III, general chairman. It will be held in Campbell Hall, Christ Church, San Carlos and Santa Rosa avenues, Sausalito, from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

For this major event on their calendar women's groups have been working all summer making and assembling a variety of things to tempt bargain hunters. Staffing has been the responsibility of Mrs. Alan Conner, president of St. Brigid's Guild.

Especially featured will be decorations for holidays and special occasions made this summer in a workshop under the direction of Mrs. Max Van Rossum Daum. Col. Rossum Daum and Frederic Palmer III will decorate Campbell Hall with garlands and swags of flowers in Autumn colors. All decorations will be for sale.

Mrs. Russell C. Ryan is in charge of antique and new furniture, jewelry, paintings, silver and glassware and large and small treasures. Mrs. Robert Gunn's group has sewed all summer on needlework, and and Mrs. Walter Harrington has collected unusual articles for her white elephant table.

In the garden and plant section Mrs. George P. Chapman will sell orchid plants, bonzai trees, rare succulents and plants in flats as well as arrangements in ceramic planters. Mrs. Walter Flegal will also be in the garden room selling old and new books.

Home made jams and jellies will be sold by Mrs. Willard Hall, and the famous cooks of Sausalito are baking pies, cakes, bread and casseroles for Mrs. Bernard J. Gratama's section.

For hungry shoppers refreshments will be available all day. Coffee and coffee cake will be served by Mrs. J. E. Laidlaw and St. Margaret's Guild from 10 to 11:30 a.m. From noon to 2 p.m., sandwiches, home made cake and pie will be served on the terrace by Mrs. Emerson Burnett and the St. Nicholas Circle, and Mrs. William D. Funk will serve tea from 3 to 4 p.m.

Dinner will be served at 6, 7 and 8 p.m. by Mesdames James F. McIndoe and Robert F. Crowell. Mrs. McIndoe is reservations chairman.

Other committee members are Mesdames Willett Ware and William U. Remensperger, decorations and display; John M. Harlan and Harrey Hohler, bargains and precious possessions; Justin M. Day, Earl G. Thompson and Wint F. Saint, garden section; James W. Smith and John E. Koenig, home baked goods; R. Jerrold Hooper, gift boxes; and Henry G. Douglas and Miss Alberta Higgins, needlework.

Bringing Up Baby®

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

Another baby on the way? If you plan to have cherub #1 spend your hospital time at grandmother's, it's a good idea to let him (or her) try a couple of overnight visits during the last part of your waiting period. Comes the day of your departure, he will have become accustomed to the idea and will probably accept it more readily.

•

Bedtime story. If your youngest child is still using the crib, you'll want to transfer him to a regular bed well before the arrival of the newcomer. (If you have to give a reason for the move, try the bit about being more "grown-up" now.) By giving your child time to get used to the new bed, he'll be less likely to resent the newcomer taking over the crib.

•

Early words. As you know, one of the earliest additions to a new baby's all-milk diet is a special baby juice to provide vitamin C. You may have started your first child on orange juice. But do you know that Gerber Apple Juice is also an ideal starting juice? Ever so delicate in flavor, it's well-tolerated by babies and enriched with vitamin C to the same high level found in Gerber Orange Juice.

•

Tactful tactics. You can often diminish resistance to the new baby by suggesting that big brother or sister share in the care of the "intruder." Jealousy can also be held in abeyance by saving billing and cooing over the new baby for times when junior's out of sight.

•

Special information dept. When baby is ready for strained foods, it should be reassuring to know that when you give him Gerber, you give him quality. All Gerber Baby Foods are "custom-cooked" according to their own requirements. This simply means that different foods require different cooking methods to insure tasteful, nourishing products. But whatever method is used, cooking times and temperatures are controlled to protect flavors and colors and preserve the utmost in precious food values. Gerber Baby Foods, Box 72, Fremont, Mich.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Home Care Under Supervision Can Be Success For Mental Patients

VAN DELLEN

A psychiatric treatment center was opened in downtown Louisville in 1961. All patients with schizophrenia coming to the center for treatment were divided into three groups. Thirty per cent were placed in a state mental institution and 40 per cent were sent home for combined center-and-home therapy. The remaining 30 per cent received the same treatment as the latter group except that a placebo was substituted for an active tranquilizer.

Home care consisted of daily medication (including placebo for the third group), a weekly or bimonthly visit by a public health nurse, and frequent telephone calls or visits to the psychiatric center. What were the results? Some of the home patients did not succeed and had to be hospitalized. This occurred more often among the group receiving the placebo than among those getting the real medicine.

AFTER 18 MONTHS, the results were tabulated. The patients treated with drugs at home were able to remain there 88.2 per cent of the time; only 11.8 per cent of the period was spent in hospitals.

Comparable figures for the placebo group were 81.7 and 18.3 per cent, respectively. Individuals who were sent to the state hospital spent 40.2 per cent of their time in the institution and only 59.8 per cent at home.

IN THE OPINION of Dr. Benjamin Pasamanick, one of the leaders of the project, this study supports the contention that home care under the supervision of a community mental health center can be as successful as a prolonged stay in a mental hospital. Family care is less expensive, creates less disorganization, and keeps the mentally disturbed person in the good graces of the husband, wife, or children.

Outpatient care is particularly important because 45 per cent of those in state mental hospitals spend 10 or more years in continuous residence there. These institutions are overcrowded and home care may prove to be the modern approach to their problem.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if a stamped self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

STRAYING CELLS

Mrs. H. writes: I have pelvic pain which my doctor says is due to endometriosis. Would it get worse if I became pregnant?

REPLY

No, and pregnanacy may relieve your discomfort. Endometrial cells (lining the uterus) often wander to various parts of the body, causing distress. Pregnancy decreases the activity of these lesions. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on endometriosis.

PALE LIDS

J.M. writes: My upper and lower eyelid membranes are pink, like a rabbit's. I am a man of 65. Can you tell me the cause?

REPLY

"Too pink" may indicate anemia. A blood count will settle this question.

STATIC ELECTRICITY

W.F.D. writes: Does one man's body contain more electricity than another man's body?

REPLY

No, except when generating static electricity by walking on a rug.

MEASLES AT TOP

Mrs. W. writes: What is the most frequent childhood disease?

REPLY

Measles. But the number of cases is expected to decline sharply with the use of the new vaccine.

Biggest Crusade Drive To Start

The residential division, biggest unit of the annual Marin United Crusade drive, will kick off its campaign tomorrow.

Two thousand volunteers — two-thirds of the number involved in the entire campaign —will take part in the county-wide drive to raise $46,500. The quota is the largest of the nine campaign divisions, with the total Marin goal set at $155,344.

"From Novato to Sausalito, we are well organized and ready to go," said Mrs. Robert Kettenbach, division chairman. "Our volunteers will make a concerted effort to call on every home in Marin County."

The volunteers will hear a special kick - off program at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow over radio KTIM. Taking part will be Mrs. Kettenbach; Byron W. Leydecker, president of the Marin United Fund; Charles J. Francis, 1963 campaign chairman; R. Allen Bolton, campaign chairman; R. Allen Bolton, campaign manager, and Lt. Col. James Dollar of Lucas Valley, campaign volunteer.

Many of the volunteers will begin their calls immediately following the KTIM program, and all are scheduled to finish by Saturday noon. First reports on the drive will be heard at the third turn-in luncheon of the campaign at noon Friday at Sabella's restaurant, Alto.

The residential division will be the last to launch its drive, which is considered the final phase of the United Crusade campaign. A mid - campaign check - up meeting with all division chairmen scheduled to report on their current standings.

Marin residents who have made donations in any of the other divisions are asked to post their "We Gave" stickers in places easily seen from the street, Mrs. Kettenbach said. Residential campaigners have been instructed not to call at these homes.

Direct - mail appeals have been sent to Marin apartment house residents, whose gifts will be counted in the residential division total.

The residential division is divided into 20 major areas. Responsibility for organizing specific areas has been taken by 11 United Crusade agencies plus the Junior League of San Francisco, with Marin members in charge, and the Marin County Circle of the Florence Crittendon Home in San Francisco, an agency of the United Bay Area Crusade.

Marin Crusade agencies taking part officially are Catholic Social Service, Marin Jewish Community Center, Camp Fire Girls, Family Service Agency, Sunny Hills, Children's Home Society, Catholic Youth Organization, YMCA, Girl Scouts, Red Cross, and Marin Council of Community Services.

Protests Filed Against Filling Of Lots On Strawberry Point

Three protests against a proposal to fill tideland lots along Strawberry Point have been filed with the Army Corps of Engineers, and the corp is awaiting further investigation by the Marin County Department of Public Works.

Mrs. Allan H. Beckwith of Daly City requested permission to fill lots to an 11-foot level along the east side of the point, with mud to be dredged from a 50-foot canal on the southern edge of the property and from a portion of the Salt Works Canal.

Objections have been filed by the Strawberry Recreation District, Mill Valley School District, and a group of property owners in the area. They allege the dredge and fill operation would interfere with navigation and recreation potentials in the area.

Marin County has asked for extra time in which to investigate the proposed landfill, and a corps spokesman said today that any work allowed in the area will "finally be up to the county, in granting any construction permits." A permit issued by the Army engineers would cover only navigational rights.

No objections had been filed with the corps' district office in San Francisco, as of Saturday's deadline, for another project, the proposed construction of eight floating docks in the San Rafael Canal.

Porto Bello Assn. of San Rafael plans to build the docks 60 feet from the dredged channel at its apartment project at San Pedro Road and Marina Boulevard.

73 Firemen Are Going To College

Seventy-three firemen, representing most departments in the county, are attending an in-service training class at College of Marin.

Because the class is so big it is taught in two sections, Tuesday and Wednesday at 7 p.m. in room 91, Olney Hall. Capt. Jack Kidder, training officer in the Novato Fire Department, is instructor.

The course was set up by former fire chief Nello Marcucci of San Anselmo and chiefs J. R. McLeran of Kentfield, Frank Buscher of Tiburon, George Bartram of Larkspur and Vance Trivett of San Rafael.

All but McLeran, who has resigned, will attend a meeting in Bartram's office in Larkspur at 10 a.m. tomorrow to discuss a more advanced course planned for next spring, said Kidder.

He said the chiefs hope also to start a new basic class next semester and wish to make the training a regular year-around course "to make firemen more efficient and successful in their work."

Condominiums Continue To Go Up, Resales Follow Pattern Of Houses

Condominiums continue to go up in Marin County and seem to find a ready flow of occupants, albeit some prospects who like the idea of home ownership without the cares of maintenance aren't entirely sold on apartment living.

Realtor Scott Chandler, sales agent for the Ha-Le-Kai and Ka-He-Le Manor on Canal Street, San Rafael, built by the brothers Nicolaisen, reports the introduction here of a "trial run" feature for doubters. It is a lease-option arrangements whereby the decision to purchase can be deferred—or chucked out entirely if the test isn't convincing.

Apparently resales in condominiums are following about the same pattern as houses. Two at the Canal Street location have brought prices substantially higher than the original purchase figures.

EDWARD J. FRIDEGAR of San Anselmo has been appointed sales representative at the Oakland office of Varner-Ward Leasing Co. He was formerly a salesman for five years with Gibbs Brokerage Co., San Francisco.

FROM COAL MINER to automotive salesman and executive to restaurateur is the work history of Reno Bosco who has retired from Bianco Motors, San Rafael to join Jim Pias as partner in the new Pandora Restaurant, San Anselmo. This is his first occupational change in 27 years—but he will still keep up his personal contacts and continue meeting the public. He believes it will give him more time for community affairs and hobbies.

Also with Dooms are Richard Dodds of Terra Linda, sales manager, and John Reid of Fairfax, salesman for the North Bay area.

Art Harvest Show Set In Novato

Many types of art will be shown to the public in an "Art Harvest" from 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday at the Novato Community House, sponsored by the Novato Art Guild.

Among the catagories are oil and water color paintings, ceramics, and crafts.

Awards will be given to the three works of art receiving the highest number of votes from those attending the exhibit. A special ballot will be given to children and a ribbon awarded to the "Children's choice award."

Non-Driving Adults Can Attend Course

Non-driving adults may still enter the fall semester driver education and training class offered in the adult education program at Novato High School, according to Robert McKeay, head of the adult education program.

Registration will start next week, he said. There is a study period at the high school on Tuesday evenings with actual driving training being offered on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings, McKeay said.

Shakespeare Session

Election of board members will feature a membership meeting of the Marin Shakespeare Festival Monday at 8 p.m. in the pavilion of Pixie Place, Marin Art and Garden Center, Ross.
